JONES, ACCOMPLICE OF LINSNBIGLER, JUMPS HIS BAIL

Hazel Kramer, Sister-in-Law of Lee, Said to Have Disappeared with Jones in Hupmobile

TRIO IS INDICTED

Before leaving Clearfield for Cleveland Lee R. Linsnbigler purchased a Hupmobile on lease, turning in part payment for same the Chicago car identified by the Cleveland detectives as having been stolen from the Milwaukee Insurance Company of Cleveland in 1921. Notwithstanding that the lease under which the car was sold precluded its being taken out of the State without the consent of the Penn Motor Sales Co. Linsnbigler drove the car to Cleveland when he moved there about one month ago.

Since the arrest of Linsnbigler the Penn Motor Sales people arranged to have the Hup brought back to Clearfield. Ted Kramer, brother of Mrs. Linsnbigler who had been employed by the Penn Motor Sales Co., traveling to Cleveland last Saturday with Mrs. Linsnbigler for the express purpose of bringing the car back to Clearfield. When he came back here Monday evening, in stead of bringing the Hup back, young Kramer presented a letter from his sister stating that he had been unable to communicate with her by hand or arrival in Cleveland on account of it being Sunday, but his attorney had seen him and he stated that he did not believe he would sell the Hup but would retain it and expected to make the next payment when it fell due.

Manager Brown of the Penn Motor Sales Co. prepared to reclaim the car, upon advice of counsel, and directed City Detective Kucera to seize it when he arrived in Cleveland.

Mr. Brown was advised by Kucera over the long distance telephone this morning that they had been unable to locate the Hupmobile as Red Jones, one of the car robbers arrested, had forfeited the $2,000 bail put up for his appearance at the hearing held in municipal court yesterday and that Jones, Hazel Kramer, sister in law of Linsnbigler, and the Hupmobile could not be located in the city.

At the hearing, after a recital of the facts as already touched upon in our stories concerning the affair, Linsnbigler, Sherwood Kramer and Yergel, the railroad detective, had been turned over to the Federal authorities and a U. S. secret service detachment sent out for the arrest of Jones and the detention of Hazel Kramer, his alleged affinity.

KANSAS MARSHAL IS KILLED DEFENDING BANK FROM BANDITS

Lawer Springs, Kans., Aug. 23.—Bandits and citizens fought a battle here early today after Leroy Dameron, aged 38, a marshal, lost his life defending the Farmers State Bank "Terrible Tommy" O'Connor, subject of a nation wide man hunt after he cheated the gallows in Chicago by escaping from jail on the day of his execution, was believed to have been a member of the gang of bandits.

ENJOYABLE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Monday evening was the birthday anniversary of ex-pole Chief Jack Lick and about 30 of his neighbors surprised Lick by dropping in on him at his home on Hallsdale and surprising him of the happy event. Jack was equal to the occasion and promptly made all friends welcome.

Scottish songs and dances were given by the guests in old time "cassies" by Mrs. Fannie and D. Kelly being especially enjoyed. The party put a climax to the evening and went by the rendering of an old Scotch song which was also very enjoyable and after delicious refreshments had been served all hands departed for home wishing Jack many happy returns of the day.

SLAYING OF COLLINS, NOTED IRISH LEADER, ROBS IRELAND OF A HEAD

shot When Ambushed By Rebels On Road; Triumphant to Succeed As Free State Rulers.

FOLLOWS GRIFFITH

Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 2.—Fighting at the heart of his staff, Michael Collins, who ambushed the rebels on the road from Limerick to Mar. 1, yesterday, Michael Collins, the Irish State leader, fell wounded at the moment of victory. As he fell the rebels were beaten off. For half an hour against overwhelming odds the Irish State and even staff who were in his party fought off the rebels. At last three of the rebels were wounded and being badly driven back and it seemed that Collins, hero of a hundred battles, had once more overthrown a rebel. But he struck him and he fell dead. He instantly.

A triumph for the Irish State. Collins, the heart of the Irish State, died at the heart of the Irish State. He was the heart of the Irish State. He was the heart of the Irish State. He was the heart of the Irish State.

Chief of the Irish State, Collins, died at the heart of the Irish State. He was the heart of the Irish State. He was the heart of the Irish State. He was the heart of the Irish State.

CURWENSVILLE IS ALL READY TO SHOW A BIG FIELD DAY

Many representatives of the Sunday Schools from all over the county will be at the Field Day picnic in Down Port Curwensville tomorrow.

This will be the largest event of the kind ever held in Central Pennsylvania. The Grampian Road and the Curwensville Road will render the beautiful country during the day.

The big cheer which was a delight and attraction to all who heard it last night's rehearsal will be one of the delightful features of the day. The sports have been especially enjoyed upon that all the folks as well as old will find amusement to their heart's content.

$4.50 A TON IS SET AS FAIR PRICE FOR LOCAL COAL

This District Gets 75 Cents Ton More Than Where Veins Are More Thick And Cheap.

BROKERS LIMITED

Harrisburg, Aug. 2.—The Pennsylvania Fuel Commission met tonight to set a fair price for bituminous coal at the mines at $4.50 a ton in the thick vein districts and $4.00 in the thin vein districts. The action was taken after a session which lasted four hours, at which it was presented that Pennsylvania coal was being attracted to other sections and would have to be placed immediately under the Fuel Administration.

The districts assigned to the commission are the same as those in force during the U. S. Fuel administration in 1918. District No. 1, where the price for bituminous coal is to be $4.50 at the mines, is as follows:

District No. 1—Operations in the counties of Luzerne, Wyoming, Carbon, Schuylkill, Lehigh, Berks, Lancaster, York, Adams, Dauphin, and Cumberland. The price for bituminous coal is to be $4.50 at the mines, is as follows:

District No. 2—Operations in the counties of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Fayette, Green, and Washington. The price for bituminous coal is to be $4.00 at the mines, is as follows:

District No. 3—Operations in the counties of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Fayette, Green, and Washington. The price for bituminous coal is to be $4.00 at the mines, is as follows:

District No. 4—Operations in the counties of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Fayette, Green, and Washington. The price for bituminous coal is to be $4.00 at the mines, is as follows:

BONUS BILL UP IN THE SENATE TODAY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—The soldier bonus bill, after reposing in a Senate pigeon-hole for nearly a year, was out on the Senate floor today with every indication that it would be passed within a week. The question as to whether President Harding will veto or sign the measure remains unanswered. A vitriolic attack was made on the measure by Senator Borah, anchor man of the opposition, who is confident that if the President vetoes the measure he will be sustained. Borah claims that at least thirty-seven Senators will vote against the measure.

HORSE THROWS LAD ON SHARP POINT OF MINING PICK

Bede Clapsaddle of Penn Twp. Was Riding Home On Horseback When Accident Occurred.

PENETRATED LUNG

Bede Clapsaddle, the 9 year old son of Barney Clapsaddle, who lives in Penn township, near Grampian was the victim of a peculiar accident which befell him shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The boy was sent to the blacksmith shop at Grampian by his father to get a coal miner's pick he was having dressed. He made the trip from his home to the smithy on horse back and with the sharp pointed pick under his arm the boy turned his horse head toward home and started.

While traveling the detour through the town of Grampian the horse stumbled and threw the boy over his head. He hung onto the neck and in falling one of the sharp points struck him a glancing blow in the side penetrating the lung for a distance of at least two inches, slashing and lacerating the lung sideways, a well.

Dr. J. A. Miller was called and after giving first aid treatment and making him as comfortable as possible placed the boy in his automobile and hurried him to the office of Dr. Stewart in Clearfield and from thence to the Clearfield Hospital.

A quick trip was necessary, in order to save the terribly injured lad from bleeding to death. Dr. Stewart made an incision in the boy's side, washed out the wound and stopped the flow of blood from the punctured lung and the little fellow is making a hard fight to recover, although his conditions are regarded as quite serious due to the possibility of pneumonia or blood poisoning developing.

BITTER DISPUTES MARK OPENING OF RAIL CONFERENCE

New York, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Bitter dispute marked the opening hours of the railway executives conference today. Head of one hundred and forty eight lines meeting to consider proposals of Big Four brotherhood members looking toward an ending of the strike found themselves at variance over their replies. A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central, Hyde Holden and C. H. Markham, committee whose probe was not closed, went to the roof of the Yale Club after the conference had been in session for some time, where they jostled back and forth as if debating some important point. Smith announced that the delegates had a lot of steam to get off their chests and that no decision was in sight.

OFFERING OF LOCAL MERCHANTS FOR DOLLAR DAY ECLIPSE FORMER EVENTS

16 Page Newspaper Just Filled With Great Opportunities for Making Dollar Go Long Ways.

STOCKS ARE FRESH

That the annual mid summer Dollar Day is going to be a great saving event for the folks who live in Clearfield and reaching distance is easy to be seen from a short perusal of the advertisements in tonight's issue. Never before in the history of the event have the merchants entered into the spirit of the day with as much vim and pep as they have this time. These merchants realize that it is time with everybody when the pennies have to be counted after the long surge of strenuous adjustment through which this community has just passed. And all thru the business district and the outlying stores you will find that the spirit of the Dollar Day has permeated every live store and your dollar takes on a greater purchasing power than it has had for several years.

Clearfield merchants can always be relied upon to do their best in an event of this kind and they have not fallen down in this instance. In a talk with the Progress man this morning, one of our leading merchants said, "Dollar Day was first instituted for the purpose of ridding our shelves of a lot of merchandise that had been in the store for a long time. Today it is vastly different. Why, I made a special trip to the city to make special purchases for this Dollar Day and I feel that I have gathered some really worth while offerings that I am going to sell for a Dollar on Friday. Dollar Day has outgrown a clearance sale, it has become an institution that is looked forward to by our people."

We believe the foregoing is the spirit if not the scope of every Clearfield merchant who is entering into the event this year. From the offerings that have already been displayed in the show windows, the savings to be made are of a very high order.

So it comes that if the weather will give us a nice day on Friday, here is a great outpouring of the savings seekers.

McDonald, Pa., Aug. 23.—An unidentified woman and a three-year old girl were found wandering in the fields north of here early today. The woman is believed to be demented and a search is being made for her relatives.

ALTOONA MEETING FOR COAL PEACE GETS NOWHERE

Operators Remind The Miner Representatives That Provisions of Old Scale Were Violated.

STILL IN SESSION

Speaking of the conference, The Altoona Mirror reporter says "The miners' representatives are standing out for the adoption of the Cleveland agreement, while this is bitterly opposed by the operators on the grounds that its terms are not acceptable because of their adaptation to local conditions."

Just how long it will take to reach an agreement, is problematical. Joint conferences have often lasted two or three weeks in the past, but it is not anticipated that it will take so long on this occasion. No prediction can be made as to the probable outcome. Both operators and miners' representatives are firm in their adherence to their respective attitudes.

Following the convening of the conference Monday afternoon the United Mine Workers went into conference and a little later came forward with a resolution in which they submitted the agreement recently made at Cleveland, in which the wage scale in effect on March 31, 1922, remains in effect until March 31, 1923, with the checkoff or collection of union dues remaining in force and the creation of an advisory fact finding commission of advisory powers for dealing with future negotiations in the soft coal industry.

When this resolution had been read and discussed a vote was called for the mine leaders voting aye and the operators voting nay.

Then came a conference of the operators in which they drew up a suggested wage scale agreement in the form of a resolution, which was presented for discussion and a vote. The operators' resolution pointed out that the wage agreement between miners and operators dated April 26, 1920, provided that in the event that a new scale agreement had not been signed on or before March 31, 1922, the men in mines should continue regularly at work under the same scale for an additional thirty days after the date on which the miners' and

BOGGS TOWNSHIP WOMAN BURNED IN KINDLING OF FIRE

Mrs. John Lumadue Uses Oil On Smouldering Fire In Kitchen Stove With Usual Result.

IN SERIOUS SHAPE

Mrs. John Lumadue, of Boggs township, near Woodland, is a patient at the Clearfield Hospital suffering from severe burns received in an accident which befell her on Monday morning last.

Mrs. Lumadue arose at 5 o'clock Monday morning and lighted the fire in the kitchen. She busied herself getting breakfast when noting the fire was not burning as it should she poured the coal oil can for the purpose of hurrying up the fire. She experienced the usual result. The oil in the smouldering wood generated a gas which exploded, blowing the can from the woman's hands, striking the stove to pieces and enveloping Mrs. Lumadue in flames. With her clothing ablaze from head to foot the frightened woman rushed out of the kitchen and started to run across a field in the direction of a neighbor. The screams of the burning woman attracted the attention of her husband who was at the barn and he hurried to her assistance. Mr. Lumadue was forced to pursue his wife several hundred feet before he succeeded in catching her. When he did get up to the now frantic woman he seized her and threw her to the ground and rolled her in the grass, succeeded in putting out the fire.

The clothes were literally burned from the woman's body, not a piece of cloth as large as a man's hand remaining when the flames were finally subdued. Mrs. Lumadue was severely burned about the legs and body, but managed in some unaccountable way to protect her face from the flames. She suffered terribly until Dr. Woodside, who was summoned reached the Lumadue home from Bigler.

After administering opiates and first aid treatment Dr. Woodside wrapped his patient in a blanket and brought her to the Clearfield Hospital. She passed a fairly comfortable night last night, but her condition is quite serious due to the large area burned.

PEACE CONFERENCE ON HARD COAL END OF MINING STOPS

Miners' Refusal To Be Tied Up To Arbitration Given As Cause Of Break In Meeting.

BREAK A SURPRISE

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—(United News)—The peace conference between anthracite coal miners and operators has collapsed.

After five days of discussion, negotiations were broken off late today in what was apparently a hopeless deadlock. The way was left open for future discussions, however, by an understanding that the conference would meet again when either is requested.

The stumbling block, according to operators' version, was arbitration. Samuel D. Warriner, operators' spokesman, explained the miners' refusal to agree to "binding arbitration" of wage disputes, on which the operators insisted.

The breakdown of the conference came as a surprise, because optimistic reports had been spread concerning its probable success. Miners even prepared for a resumption of operations, and agreements was expected in all quarters.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declined to discuss the issues.

In addition to the price fixed on the coal at the mine, the commission already has decided that the commission fee must not be more than 25 cents between the mine and the consumer, no matter how many hands it passes through in brokerage transactions. The freight will be the only other additional charge on bituminous coal until it reaches the consumer.

ALTOONA MEETING

operators held their first meeting to formulate a new scale succeeding the old and upon completion of the new agreement, for such portions of the thirty days extending beyond April 1, 1922, the pay should be those that were agreed upon in the next contract; that the mines of the operators' association have been idle since April 1, 1922, and that Aug. 21 constituted the first day of joint meeting as provided in the aforesaid rule (25), and they therefore suggested that the Mine Workers' scale committee order a resumption of work at all member mines in this district under the terms and conditions as set forth by rule 25, pending and during the negotiations between the scale committees of the operators and the miners.

This resolution was put up for a vote, the operators vote aye and the miners nay, whereupon the conference adjourned until this morning.

Indiana Operators Accept Cleveland Agreement

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 23.—Thirty thousand coal diggers returned to their pits in Indiana today. They went to work at the wage in effect before the strike started April 1st—the terms of the Cleveland agreement. Mine owners and representatives of the union signed a peace pact here late yesterday.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine workers of America, declared in a telegram today to Representative Bland, Republican, Indiana, that if the Federal Government proposed to "disregard the rights of miners and operators in making an independent investigation of the coal industry," the responsibility will lie with those who recommended such action.

While the Senate labor committee was taking the first formal action toward creation of the coal fact-finding commission recommended by President Harding the president let it be known today that he was disposed to insist that the investigating body special representation for either mine made up exclusively of impartial representatives of the public without operators or employees.

RENTED HUSBAND TO WEALTHY WOMAN FOR $100 PER MONTH

Alameda, Cal., Aug. 23. Mrs. Nelly Kendrick today told the story of how she bartered her husband to Mrs. Edith Spreckles Wakefield for $100 a month and of how she later regretted her bargain. She is now considering suing Mrs. Wakefield for $25,000 for alleged alienation of her husband's affections. Mother love, the prospect of getting a steady income for her baby, prompted her to sell her husband, and womanly love for the man caused her to change her mind later, she said. Mrs. Kendrick showed no enmity toward the wealthy society woman as she described the strange love triangle centering around Rodney Kendrick, the artist. Mrs. Kendrick said she first met her husband in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1913, while employed there for the Department of Labor.

Permanent Embassies

It was not until the close of the fifteenth century that the permanent embassy became an all common, and not until the end of the sixteenth that it became a generally recognized institution. In 1487 Dr. Rodrigo Gonzalez de Puebla was appointed permanent Spanish ambassador to England, and, as he was still in London in 1500, the Spanish embassy in the British capital must be regarded as the oldest among the permanent embassies of the world.

Conception of Cultivation

Cultivation a generation ago meant acquaintance with letters and the fine arts, and some knowledge of at least two languages and literatures, and of history. The term "cultivation" is now much more inclusive. It includes elementary knowledge of the sciences, and it ranks high the subjects of history, government and economics.—Charles W. Eliot, in Atlantic.

FOR BRAIN, BRAIN AND MUSCLE GIVE THE KIDDIES OUR SAFE MILK

The time's soon coming when your kiddies will start their regular school sessions and they'll need all the strength they can acquire, they'll need the added mental stimulus for their studies and they'll need all the muscular development possible to partake in the school athletics.

The best way for them to do all these things is to start drinking plenty of our safe milk, for it's such a body and mind builder that they cannot help but thrive on it.

If you start them on a milk diet or with plenty of milk to drink at and between meals, you'll find that they are stronger and sturdier than they have ever been.

Praise

Praise may put up a shallow nature, but it always brings something of humanity to a deep one. Love and commendation are sweet, but just because they are worth so much the true and honest spirit is turned with a sense of its own unworthiness as it receives them, a longing to be better fitted for the trust reposed in it. It is not the flash of ego, but the light of love that reveals to ourselves and lifts us to our best effort.

Daily Thought

Life, with all its fields of joy and woe, is just our chance of the prize of learning love—how love might be, hath been indeed, and is—breveting.

KILLS BABIES TO PUNISH HIS WIFE

Husband, Fearing Suit for Divorce, Drowns Three Boys and a Girl.

Paris.—M. Hugnet, a farmer of Savignac, France, is under arrest for one of the most brutal crimes committed in France during the recent crime wave here. Hugnet is charged with having drowned his four young children in a pond in order to punish his wife, and then to have slept calmly until he was placed under arrest.

According to his wife's story, he previously had shown great love for the children, but had concentrated all his hatred on his wife. Finally, she said she could stand his beatings no longer, so she went to the home of her parents, planning to return later for the children, and then to begin proceedings for a divorce.

Hugnet heard of her plans and went to see her, begging her to return to him. Upon her refusal, he threatened to do something which would cause her death within a few weeks. He returned to his home and, at midnight, drowned the four children, taking the seven-month-old boy first, then the two-year-old son, then the five-year-old boy, and finally, Marie, seven, his only daughter.

The two older children sensed the tragedy and begged for their lives, but their father was obdurate and, after beating them with a club, he threw their bodies into the pond. It is improbable that he will mount the gallows, as it is believed he is insane and that a jury will send him to an asylum for the rest of his life.

DEAD MAN'S GLANDS ARE USED

After Execution They Are Grafted on Patient in Hospital in Sing Sing Prison.

Ossining, N. Y.—Human glands, instead of the usual monkey glands, were grafted upon George Hanzer, a prisoner in Sing Sing prison, to renew his vigor and cure him of epileptic tendencies, according to medical attaches at the prison.

Glands from the body of Edward Persons, electrocuted for murder, were transferred to that of Hanzer. Persons had been put to death three weeks before, and the glands from his body had been preserved. He had been in perfect health until the electric shock was applied.

Hanzer is convalescing in the prison hospital.

Fall From Father's Arms Kills Baby.

New Britain, Conn.—Marguerite Alenczka, ten months old, was instantly killed when she fell from her father's arms while he was carrying her on the veranda of their home. The infant fell three stories to the street. The father dropped the child, it is said, when he was bumped by a baby carriage he was taking down a stairway.

Animal Has Two Heads, Six Legs.

Areadia, Fla.—Fairy tales cannot show an equal to the strange animals which are at large in Florida these days. Mrs. Horatio Smith, a good Christian woman has seen the latest of these creatures in broad daylight. It has legs, two heads, and it is an honest-to-goodness animal, but it has feet like a duck.

Tots Play Century With Loaded Pistol

New York.—Examining a pre-revolutionary pistol that had been a plaything for children for more than a century, Clyde A. Copson one day found it was loaded with powder and shot. The pistol, with a 11-inch barrel and a half-inch bore, originally belonged to George Thomas Dwyers of the Continental army, from whom Mrs. Copson is a descendant.

Cop as a Censor

Mrs. Mary Sladden had just lit a cigarette as she stood on a street corner with her husband in New York when a cop ordered her to throw it away. When she claimed it was her privilege to smoke he struck it out of her hand. And now the police commissioner must decide if his men have the right to act as censors.

FARM FOR SALE

I offer the following farm and its contents, for sale at a real bargain to a quick buyer. Just the farm for any man to make a good investment and start in farming.

Farm known as the Jones Norman farm, located in Lawrence township, near O'Shaughnessy, Pa. Five minute walk to New York Central station.

High Collars

Many of the new fall models show a marked preference for severely tailored lines. One type has a high collar—quite up under the ears and retaining the rudiments of a cape. The other has side drapes and tight sleeves.

Daring Colors

Scarlet and gold and brown—brown chiffon velvet combined with scarlet and gold metal cloth will characterize fall dresses. Lines will be simple.

SHERIFF MAHAFFEY'S HORSES WINNING

Ex-Sheriff James Mahaffey has his string of race horses making the fair circuit in Western Pennsylvania. At Ford City "Peter" Gohagan, "one of the classiest of the bunch stepped out in front and won the 2.25 pace in handy style, William the Great, took second took second money in the 2.20 class. After the race the Sheriff sold the horse to Harry Montgomery. Mr. Mahaffey has Peter Gohagan entered in the $1000 stake race at the Butler fair tomorrow and he will be on the job to see the race run.

By Carrier 12 cents per Week Payable to Carrier

Entered in Post Office at Clearfield, Pa., as second class mail matter.

A young fellow from an outlying district got "stewed up" on moonshine while driving an automobile, ran into another car, was caught, and has had his license taken away from him. Very proper indeed. The life and limb of every man is in danger on our public highways today.

This fellow had his license taken away, not because of his negligent act, but because he had no friend at court. This is a sad conclusion, proved by the fact that the licenses of no less than a score of our citizens, who have offended more times, have not been revoked.

We read as we live, too fast. That is why more people did not take the trouble to read the text of President Harding's most recent speech before Congress. And judging from the comment we have heard some people make, they read not to understand, but to confirm their suspicions. Already there is a tendency noted in certain quarters to "read into" the message a lot of things it did not contain.

President Harding stepped on a lot of fellows' toes because he told the truth, the plain truth and nothing but the truth. The miner didn't like it because he officially stated that "except for such coal as comes from the districts worked by unorganized miners, the country is at the mercy of the United Mine Workers. Coal operators who are obsessed with the idea of 'breaking the union' didn't like the chief executive to say, 'in the weeks of patient conference and attempts at settlement I have come to appraise another element * * *. It is in some degree responsible for the strikes and has hindered attempts at adjustment. I refer to the warfare on the unions of labor. The Government has no sympathy or approval of this element of discord.'" And so on.

There is hardly a million miners and operators. Both are sore. Wonder what the other ninety-nine million of us think about having a President who speaks out in meeting that way?

Modern merchandising, contrary to the opinion often expressed, is not so wasteful as the old methods. Not so long ago we were shown the stock of an old-fashioned general merchandise store which had charged hands. Seventy-five per cent of the stock was old, faded and out of date. Wearing apparel representing all the styles from 1900 up to date was still being held in stock with their original price tags placed thereon. No effort, whatever had been made to sell these goods while they are yet saleable by making price concessions in what we know as the modern "sale."

Today the up-to-date store refuses to carry anything over from one season to another except the most staple of articles. The more progressive the merchant, the oftener he culls his stock and throws the surplus on the bargain table.

Dollar Day is to the merchant what the semi-annual house cleaning is to the home and is just as healthy for all concerned. Those who expect all new stocks to be put into Dollar Day offerings, although in many instances these stocks are new, do not understand the spirit and purpose of the event. But consider this:—

* Friday, at the lowest possible estimate, twenty thousand dollars will be spent in Clearfield. There is almost a general ten per cent. reduction and many of the offerings are better yet. That means a saving to the consumer of two thousands of dollars on that day. Worth while, isn't it?

New Jersey convicts staged a healthy riot because they were denied more than one-half a peach for dessert during "peach week," when, owing to the big crop of peaches in Jersey, everybody was being urged to eat all the peaches they could.

Pennsylvania convicts a few months ago staged a riot at the Western penitentiary because of dissatisfaction over the method of selecting prisoners for transfer to the new penitentiary in Centre county.

Eye witnesses to these riots tell us that they never witnessed nor ever expect to witness such an exhibition of hate, fury and

LIQUID ASSETS

The aim of the County National's management has always been to keep its assets, in so far as possible, in liquid shape, so that every customer entitled to credit can be accommodated on request.

At the time of the latest statement, the bank had cash assets, (cash on hand or deposited with other banks and demand loans) of $1,064,623.83.

MORE THAN A RAIN SHEDDER

African Chiefs Take the Possession of an Umbrella Very Seriously, According to Reports.

Some time ago, there was what the news described as an upset in the West African colony of Lagos; telegrams were dispatched between that country and Great Britain, governors and deputy governors were interviewed, and it was with difficulty that a native war was averted. The cause of all this commotion was an umbrella.

Now, in our country, as we all know, an umbrella is looked upon as a harmless possession—but not so in West Africa. There, among most of the native tribes, the umbrella is regarded as an emblem of royalty and its possession is strictly confined to the chief or king of the tribe.

Therefore the indignation was intense on the part of one of these kings, when he found an interior chief putting up an umbrella of his own. The king at once took a journey to Lagos, to lodge a formal complaint of the chief's treasonable conduct with the British governor.

An African king's umbrella is a very elaborate affair, and it often costs large sums of money. Most of the umbrellas for Ashanti and the Gold Coast are made of gigantic size, some of them when open measuring ten feet across.

The coverings of these umbrellas are of colored silk—the brighter the better, with very deep fringes. The largest umbrellas are carried over the heads of chiefs, by bearers while other bearers steady the umbrella by cords attached to the uppermost parts.

One state umbrella had for its apex a silver eagle standing on two silver cannons, while another umbrella had a gold lion on the top, the lion being surrounded by numerous chickens, to represent the chief and his tribe.

CHANGES IN "OLD FAITHFUL"

Yellowstone's Famous Geyser Has Slightly Lengthened the Periods Between Its Eruptions.

Old Faithful, Yellowstone's most famous geyser, has slightly changed the period of its eruptions.

According to the observations of the park naturalist and the rangers, the geyser now spouts on an average every 64.6 minutes. Last year the average period was 60 minutes.

The alteration in Old Faithful's "tempo" does not indicate any lessening of its vigor or "faithfulness." On the contrary, Naturalist M. P. Skinner's observations show the mighty fountain to be increasing in volume. The change is believed to be due to "alteration in the subterranean tube at its base."

For the last year or so Old Faithful has acquired a habit of occasionally throwing out small rocks. The passage of the rocks through the tube is believed to have enlarged its dimensions, slightly, this in turn being responsible for the lengthened period between eruptions and the increased volume of water.

A number of other interesting changes, lending a constantly varying interest to the mysterious manifestation of the park's performing natural wonders, also are reported by official observers.

That Word "Corker." The American word "corker," meaning a person or thing of superlative quality, is only a slang use of a legitimate English word. "Corker," in its original sense, meant a conclusive argument. It probably originated from the quality which a cork thrust into the mouth of a bottle stops all egress, or ingress of material in it.

The relegation of the word as used in America to the realm of slang by the dictionary writers has neither weakened the word nor limited its use.

The word "corker" is a perfectly good word. It expresses precisely a shade of meaning that needed to be expressed, and the chances are that it will be a word of good and regular standing long after the bones of the last living dictionary writers have thoroughly bleached.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Newspaper Accuracy.

B. A. White of the Detroit News after long investigation finds that daily papers make only one error in every 3,250 opportunities for mistakes. This country recently celebrated the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock and history has pointed out the very spot where they landed. Now a scientist discovers that at the time the Pilgrims landed this spot was under sea. Which leads Mr. White to ask, "If history cannot report a fact correctly in 300 years, ought we expect a newspaper to be unfailingly accurate in six or eight hours?"

Diphtheria Germs in Wild Horses.

Wild horses ranging on the open range and never in contact with human beings have been found to be infected with the diphtheria germ, according to Dr. H. W. Schoenung of the pathology division of the bureau of plant industry, at Washington. This fact, he claims, indicates that the diphtheria organism is widespread in the wild and is not carried to the horse by one human being, as has been held.

bloodthirstiness.

Granted that those confined there are hardened criminals, many of them brutes, beasts and moral renegades, is it not silly to think that the reasons assigned were the sole cause of these outbreaks?

Some day the true story of what took place at the Western Penitentiary will be told. Then we will gasp in astonishment and demand once more that penal institutions be run with a view to recreating the moral fibre in a man rather than breaking the manhood that is in him.

SLANG OF "GOOD OLD DAYS"

Great-Grandfather Enlightens Flapper as to the Meaning of Some Terms of Long Ago.

"He's a poor nut!" Jeered the flapper.

"In '59 we should have called him a 'lunatic-hammer,'" put in her great-grandfather, unexpectedly.

The flapper looked interested. "What was '59 for hip pocket?" asked she.

"Bingo," answered the old man promptly. "And home brew we should have called 'blue-ruin'; a gentleman occasionally was 'disgusted.'"

"Go on," cried the flapper, delighted. "You, my dear"—he bowed to her—"would have been 'smart as a cat' in my day. Some of your contemporaries I've seen 'slamming' about in their 'clumpers,' more like men than women, but you are always—'flummy.'"

"Next you'll be telling me you shimmied in '59!"

"No, we 'hopped.' Do you know what we meant by a 'hummer'?"

"A good one," guessed the flapper. "How did you get excited?"

"We were in a 'pucker,' or we went on a 'burst,' or there was a 'plather,'" said her great-grandfather. Then he ended: "But there's one word that your generation can't parallel. What did we mean by 'manners'?"

"You have me, grandfather," admitted the flapper.

The old man opened a little worn book on the table beside him and read: "Manners—'a portion of a dish left by the guests, that the host may not feel himself reproached.' Those were good old days—what?" said he.

HIGH FOOD VALUE OF DATES

Ideal Diet Never Properly Appreciated by the American Public, Is Physician's Assertion.

"The value of the date as a food is not half appreciated by the American public," writes Dr. John Harvey Kellogg.

"The date not only furnishes a variety of sugar which is readily assimilated and which is much more wholesome than cane sugar, but it supplies a fine quality of food iron. An ounce of dates, in fact, supplies one-third more food iron than an ordinary beefsteak and iron of much finer quality."

"The date is equally superior as a source of food lime and other food salts, supplying seven times as much lime as does beef tenderloin. The date requires nothing but the simple addition of milk to constitute a complete diet. A pound of dates and a quart of milk afford nourishment not only sufficient in quantity to supply the needs of the average person, but of the highest quality."

"The American people are suffering from time starvation, which is resulting not only in a loss of stature, due to lack of bone development, but an almost universal decay of teeth. The free use of dates with milk as a part of the American breakfast would conduce greatly to improvement of the national health and the lowering of the mortality rate."

The Mosquito Plant. The virtues of the species of basil (Ocimum viride) known as the mosquito plant are attracting attention in England. An army officer has given a growing plant to the botanical gardens at Kew. He obtained it in Nigeria, where, he says, it is known to drive mosquitoes from its neighborhood, and the natives use an infusion of its leaves as a cure for malarial fevers. Its virtues are known in India also, as a border of it was planted round the Victoria garden in Bombay because the workmen were pestered by mosquitoes and suffered from malaria. As soon as the hedge was completed the mosquitoes left and there was no more malaria among the workmen.—Exchange.

Figures for Home Builder.

Unless very much interested in figures, the home builder does not know how each dollar is spent that he puts into the construction of his home. He knows in a general way that there are several general groups, but as he looks at the finished dwelling he does not know what per cent of the cost went for masonry or carpentry or something else. Using the dollar for illustrating the relative costs, it is estimated that 36.1 cents go for masonry, 29.1 cents for carpentry, 8.7 cents for heating, 6.5 cents for electrical work, 6 cents for plumbing, 3.5 cents for sheet metal work, 2.9 cents for roofing and 1.2 cents for hardware.

Soap Bubbles Aid Scientists.

Every one who buys gasoline for his automobile has a direct concern in the efficiency of engines, the study of which is being assisted by soap bubbles, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. These are now being used at the bureau of standards in determining the rate of propagation of flame in combustible mixtures of gases. Strangely enough, for years there has been sought a means whereby explosions could be studied under constant pressure free from complicating circumstances, but it was just recently pointed out at this institution that soap bubbles afford in ideal fashion just what is wanted.

Granada.

Granada was at one time part of the Roman province of Roetia, but after the Arab invasion it became an independent Moorish kingdom. It was the last possession of the Moors in Spain, who fearfully gave up their country to their conquerors, Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain, in 1492.

Thackeray's Secret.

Thackeray defied all rules. His wonderful eye saw everything and everybody. He lived and enjoyed life with an absolutely unimpaired and childlike zest, and his brave, simple, tender spirit, endured, to the end. Where other men are connoisseurs of fine flavors and delicate nuances Thackeray was a connoisseur of the broadest and biggest things of life—its pathos, its absurdity, its courage, its loyalty.

Business Item.

"Honesty is the best policy," said the ready-made philosopher. "Of course, it is," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "But the public doesn't always realize it. Most people would rather be cheated a little in an affable way than do business with a person whose conscience keeps him in a state of irritation."

The True Funeral Director.

The true funeral director is serious but not gloomy; dignified, but not morose; gentle, but not fawning; self-possessed, but not self-conscious; quietly masterful but not bossy; alert, but not fussy; watchful, but not nervous; pathetic, but not lachrymose; a kindly, unassuming master of ceremonies. —From a paper read at a convention in San Francisco.

Cleans Leather.

A reader of the Christian Science Monitor writes: "I took my handbag to a number of leather stores where they all told me it could not be cleaned, but I learned from a friend that a tablespoonful of oxalic acid dissolved in a quart of cold water cleans cowhide, pigskin and sole leather very satisfactorily."

Daily Thought.

The motto marked upon our foreheads, written upon our doorposts, channeled in the earth and wafted up on the waves is and must be, "Labor is honorable and idleness dishonorable."—T. Carlyle.

Why Are Some Women Popular?

happy, beloved and successful, while others drag out a negative existence, or no use to themselves or anyone else? Except in a few cases the answer is to be found in a state of freedom from the troubles known as "female." The well woman radiates cheerfulness and serenity, while the ailing one repels because of her lack of these qualities. It is not necessary, however, to harbor aches and pains, and the "blues" that make one a detriment to society. The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought relief to such women, and given them a new lease on life.

: News of : Our Neighbors CURWENSVILLE

Raymond Maurey and Bruce Norris of Curwensville and Robert Kurtz of Clearfield, left today in Kurtz' car for Philadelphia, New York and Atlantic City. They will be gone for two weeks.

Great preparations are being made for the Sunday School Field Day on Thursday, August 24. There will be fine speeches, a fine choir of 200 voices, two good bands and an excellent orchestra. Many athletic events will be held during the day. A stirring base ball game will be played and there will be various kinds of races. Lovely prizes will be given to the winners. Everyone is invited to attend this picnic. Bring your children and your basket. A good time is in store for all.

Miss Mary Cole is spending a few days in Philadelphia and New York.

Mrs. W. S. Wiley, of Hyde City, was a Curwensville visitor yesterday.

Joseph Muffie and children, of DuBois, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Passarelli.

A meeting of the Alumni Athletic Association was held last evening in the auditorium of the High School to discuss the prospect of a Foot Ball team for the coming season.

John Haley, who has been attending State College this summer, is visiting relatives in town.

Misses Dorothy Dimling, Bernice Anderson and Helen Shaw, of Clearfield, were Curwensville visitors yesterday.

Frank Alexander of Reynolds, Pa., spent Tuesday in town.

Misses Lenora Test and Lily Olson, who attended Clarion Normal this summer have returned to their homes.

A NATIONAL TRAIT

"At my table, the high cost of living is no problem in the South Sea Islands."

"It would be, if I could get the same amount of money. American money is suddenly transported to these islands and forced to live there."

"What do you mean?"

"If I would be 30 months in the South Sea Islands, I would be a rich man."

"Started Early."

"You say Midding is a born reformer?"

"Just that."

"What do you mean by a born reformer?"

"I have it on the authority of his grandmother that when he was five years old, he started a campaign in his neighborhood to abolish Mother Goose."

"Careful Calculation."

"I understand you have been offered a large salary to go into motion pictures."

"I have," replied Senator Sorghum.

"But I'm not going. I like to keep up with my surroundings and large as the offer seems to be it wouldn't be enough to enable me to keep the motion picture and I pay."

"What is Bad Luck?"

"Oh, I just lost a lookin' glass. I'm going to have seven years' bad luck."

"I don't believe that. Cause a friend of mine lost one and she never had no seven years' bad luck."

"It was only three days later she was killed in an explosion, so I wouldn't worry about it," said Late.

"The Noes Have It."

"Yes, they do. I lost my noes yesterday."

Vernon Crocker, of Virginia, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Leach.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Eckbert and children of Coalport, spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Pitzer.

Ralph Hess was a Clearfield visitor last evening.

Polite Designation.
Old Human Nature's ways are strange
In time of stress or storm,
And every time he wants a change
He calls it a reform.

Distributing the Attention.
"Are you going to take boarders next summer?"

"Yes, indeed," said Farmer Cornbloss. "Not that we need the money, but we want somebody around besides our own family for the mosquitoes to pick on."

Sincere—I used to flatter myself on the way I dressed a chicken, but since they added the luxury tax I have had to cut that out.—Judge.

Pointing a Moral.
"Do you tell your constituents to be good and they'll be happy?"

"Not exactly," replied Senator Sorghum. "I keep them impressed with the idea that their only chance of happiness depends on re-electing me."

Sidelights on History.

PROBABLY NOT

"I presume my letters to her will be read in court?"

"It's quite likely," said the lawyer who had been engaged by the defendant in a breach of promise suit.

"I dread that. The pet names I called her will make me look foolish."

"I wouldn't worry," said the lawyer, soothingly. "The court is used to hearing terms of that sort, and I don't suppose you thought up any new ones."

A 1922 Model.
"I want to marry your daughter, sir."

"I'm merely her father."

"Of course, and that's why I thought it best to consult your wishes."

"Thank you for the compliment, young man. The only time that girl ever consults my wishes is when she pauses to ask if I'd rather give her a check or cash."

Prepared.
Wills—I told my wife she must begin to economize and that she must keep account of the household expenses.

"Huh? She's a singer, not a high kicker."

All Satisfactory.

The Main Idea.
"We are here to give the people what they want," said a young member at a committee meeting.

Parallel of Southard Case Seen in Arrest of Clara Gibson Carl in Indiana.

CHARGE ARSENIC USED

Girl is Accused of Poisoning Her Father-in-Law—Alleged She Bought Possession of Insurance and Property.

Greenfield, Ind.—A parallel to the case of Mrs. Lydia Southard the woman "Bluebeard" now serving a prison sentence for the murder by poisoning of one of her husbands may be developed here through the arrest of Clara Gibson Carl for the murder of Adonzo B. Carl her father-in-law.

Mrs. Carl is charged with having given arsenic to the father of her husband, Frank B. Carl, in August 1921 in indictments returned by the county grand jury a few days ago. The death of her husband followed soon after that of his father and under similar circumstances. A former husband of Mrs. Carl Robert Gibson also died under rather mysterious circumstances in March 1920 and is now buried in Springfield O. It is said his body will be ordered taken up and examined.

After their deaths the bodies of the Carls were taken to Elmhurst, Kan. their former home and buried. In November, last year the grand jury of Hancock county Indiana unearthed evidence that caused it to recommend the disinterment of the bodies of the Carls with the view of determining the manner of their deaths.

Arsenic is Found. Waldo Gling prosecuting attorney of Hancock county acted on the jury's recommendations and moved to obtain the removal of the bodies.

The bodies of the Carls were taken up and sent to Indianapolis for chemical analysis. The chemical report was that presence of arsenic in large quantities was found in the stomach of the body of the elder Carl. The report on the analysis of the contents of the stomach of Frank Carl will be submitted later. The indictment of Mrs. Carl immediately followed. Gling believes that the probable motive for the murder was the desire to obtain insurance and property.

It was while the wife of Gibson that the woman came to Greenfield about nine years ago. Gibson is said to have had several thousand dollars insurance and a small tract of land near Greenfield.

Upon arrest, Mrs. Carl exhibited calm behavior and has persistently said nothing concerning the case. The file is known concerning the woman previous to her coming to Greenfield. A search of the house she occupied is said to have revealed nothing of an incriminating nature.

Girl Who Married Sixteen Men Must Face Trial in Many Cities of the Country

Brooklyn—Helen Ferguson Dressler has been sentenced to six months in the reformatory following her first trial for charges of becoming the wife of 16 American soldiers and sailors during the World war. She admits her object was to get their allowances.

When she has served that sentence she is scheduled for trials in Baltimore, Md., Norfolk, Va., Holyoke, Mass. and several other places where her "husbands" live.

Fortunately for the much married woman the most of her husbands came from the Great Lakes naval training school at Chicago. "At that, I will be making the rounds for the rest of my life," she declares dejectedly.

Spent $23,000 on Husband.

Turner O.—In an effort to keep her husband home at night Mrs. Alice Winters bought him $23,000 worth of automobile tires and spent $1,000 on her own money. She told the court.

But all her efforts were to no avail. Mrs. Winters therefore brought suit for divorce from Leon A. Watson, of Cleveland O.

CHARGES OFFICIALS OF DISTRICT FIVE WITH GETTING AWAY WITH THREE MILLION

Seven charges against officers of District No. 5 United Mine Workers of America, and other officers of the miners' union who have held office since 1913 in No. 5 district were brought yesterday by three members of the United Mine Workers, who, through Attorney Charles B. Prichard filed a bill in equity in the prothonotary's office against Robert R. Gibbons, president, P. P. Egan, vice president, William Hargest, secretary-treasurer, the present officers and Vin Bittner, Phil Murray, Patrick Hanaway, Robert Woods, John O'Leary, James Flood, Thomas W. Hughes, Fred C. Galbrek, William Hayes, Michael D. Egan, William Teare, John Vogel and James Charlton, former officers or members of the district executive board.

Charges that since 1913 a sum of money aggregating $2,000,000 has been collected by the officers and that but comparatively little was spent in pursuance with the constitution and bylaws of the organization were made by the three plaintiffs who file the suit in their names and in the names of all office members of District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers.

$3,000,000 Is Issue

The plaintiffs, George S. Fisher, Michael Halapay and Charles Chambers are residents of Independence Washington county, and are members of the organization.

The bill claims that by means of the he prothonotary filed the bill on the 8th of last month of the members have been up to $3,000,000, the with a with an additional sum of one half of one percent of the total earnings of each member. Entering the sum was to go into a defense fund for the payment of strike fines and other necessities in time of strike. It is charged that since then has been no widespread strike in 1921 up until April there had been approximately $3,000,000 in the fund. The bill claims that the defendant

SEE END OF GREAT TEXTILE STRIKE IN LAWRENCE, MASS.

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 23—The end of the great textile strike was forecast today when the Pacific Mill, the largest mill here, announced that the workers would be taken back at the scale of wages in effect previous to last wage cut of 20 per cent. But believed that the workers will accept the wage. It was announced that the old wage scale would go into effect on October 1st and be retroactive to September 1st.

Embezzlement Charged. It is charged that William Hargest, secretary-treasurer, has refused to make semi-annual reports of expenditures to the local and that all of the defendants have acted in an improper manner and have further misappropriated and embezzled a large part of the huge fund, approximately $3,000,000 or are improperly, unjustly unlawfully and inequitably withholding the same from the legal and proper use for which the same was intended.

Citing an example the bill charged that Vin Bittner and Patrick Hanaway without just authority, diverted $10,000 from the trust and loaned it to the Pacific Coal Company, making no record of the books of any such action. It is also alleged that a bonus in the form of stock was given to the defendants, which they have appropriated to their own use.

Benefits Denied, Is Charge. It is also alleged that during the recent strike that the defendants have refused to pay strike benefits and have refused to pay burial expenses of members, although such is provided for in the constitution.

The plaintiffs ask that the defendants answer the charges in the bill and that an account be rendered of all the money paid to or disbursed by the defendants and that the defendants be compelled to restore missing money and ordered to make payment to members as provided for in the constitution of the organization.

Excellent Precepts.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION ANNOUNCES COMPETITIVE EXAMINATIONS BY WHICH VACANCY IN LOCAL OFFICE TO BE FILLED

Candidates Will Not Be Required To Appear For Examination But Will Be Rated On Their Education, Training and Business Experience.

RULES MADE UP BY THE COMMISSION

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for Postmaster of Clearfield to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Postmaster W. E. Tobias. The order received by Postmaster Tobias today follows:

The United States Civil Service Commission at the request of the Postmaster General, announces a competitive examination for postmaster in this city.

This examination is held under the President's Order of May 10, 1921, and not under the civil service act and rules.

Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place but will be rated upon their education and training, business experience and fitness.

Apply to the secretary of the board of civil service examiners at the post office in this city or to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., for application Form 2241, and Form 2213 containing definite information in regard to the examination.

Applications must be properly executed on Form 2241 and filed with the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., prior to the hour of closing business on the date specified in Form 2213.

This is not an examination, under the Civil Service Act and rules, but is held under an Executive order issued May 10, 1921, revised July 27, 1921, which provides as follows:

"When a vacancy exists or hereafter occurs in the position of postmaster at an office of the first, second, or third class, if such vacancy is not filled by nomination of some person within the competitive classified Civil Service who has the required qualifications, then the Postmaster General shall certify the fact to the Civil Service Commission, which shall forthwith hold an open competitive examination to test the fitness of applicants to fill such vacancy, and when such examination has been held and the papers in connection therewith have been rated, the said Commission shall certify the results thereof to the Postmaster General who shall submit to the President the name of one of the highest three qualified eligibles for appointment to fill such vacancy unless it is established that the character or residence of any such applicant disqualifies him for appointment: Provided, That at the expiration of the term of any person appointed to such position through examination before the Civil Service Commission, the Postmaster General may, in his discretion, submit the name of such person to the President for re-nomination without further examination.

"No person who has passed his sixty-fifth birthday, or who has not actually resided within the delivery of such office for two years next preceding the date of examination, shall be given the examination herein provided for.

"If, under this order, it is desired to make nomination for any office of a person in the competitive classified service, such person must first be found by the Civil Service Commission to meet the minimum requirements for the office."

Candidates will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on the following subjects, which will have the relative weights indicated:

Subjects: Weights
1. Education and training 20
2. Business experience and fitness 80
Total 100

In addition to the full and detailed information called for by Questions 21 and 23 of Form 2241, the candidates are required to furnish the following in connection with each responsible position held by them:

(a) The number of persons under their supervision.
(b) The character of the business done by the person, firm or corporation.
(c) The volume of business done annually.
(d) The commercial rating of each person, firm or corporation.

Offices over $2,000, including $4,000. For offices paying over $2,000, up to and including $4,000 a year, the candidate must show that for at least three years he has been engaged in occupations in which he has demonstrated ability to conduct the affairs of a business to the extent required of a postmaster of the post office for which he is a candidate.

For all offices—It must also appear in all cases that the candidates have demonstrated their ability to meet and deal with the public satisfactorily. Statements as to education, training and experience are subject to verification.

To be eligible for examination, a candidate must be a citizen of the United States, must be in good physical condition, must actually reside within the delivery of the office for which the application is made, and must have been such resident for at least two years next preceding the date of examination.

The date of any vacancy as referred to in this announcement shall be the date of the death, resignation, removal, or the date of the expiration of the term of the last postmaster.

Candidates in competitive examinations for the position of postmaster at an office of the second class must have passed their 25 birthday on the date of examination. Those who have passed their sixty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination are not eligible to compete for any office.

Candidates must submit with their applications small, unmounted photographs taken within two years. Proofs, group photographs, or tin-types not accepted.

Persons who meet the requirements and desire this examination should at once apply for Form 2241, stating the title of the examination for which the form is desired, to the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or at the post office in the city where the vacancy exists. Applications must be properly executed and filed with the Commission at Washington, D. C., to the hour of closing business on the date specified at the head of this announcement.

METHOD OF RATING
The rating on the education and training of the candidates will be determined from the information furnished in answer to Question 21 of the application, as follows, and upon corroborative information:

Question 21. Submit a complete statement of your education and training, giving the names of the institutions at which you have studied, the length of attendance (with dates), the courses of study pursued, and the degrees, if any, conferred.

The rating on business experience and fitness will be determined by the character and extent of the business experience of the candidate as shown, first, by his answer to Question 24 of the application, which reads as follows:

Question 24. State fully and in detail all the practical experience you have had in any profession, occupation, or business of a character tending to qualify you for the position of postmaster. State (a) dates when employed; (b) where; (c) name and address of employer; (d) salary or compensation received; (e) the specific nature of your duties in each employment. The following information concerning each commercial position held by you should also be furnished: (a) The number of persons under your supervision, if any, and the character of the work done by these persons; (b) the character of the business done by the employing person, firm, or corporation; (c) the volume of business done annually; (d) the commercial rating of the employing person, firm or corporation; (e) your relation to other employees holding supervisory positions, if any.

And, second, by a careful investigation of each candidate by the Civil Service Commission. The investigation covers two purposes, namely, first, full inquiry as to each candidate's suitability and fitness for the office by reason of his character and personal characteristics, and if he is found unsuitable by the Commission as a result of such inquiry he, of course, will not be declared eligible; the second purpose of the investigation is the same careful inquiry from persons best qualified to know of the business qualifications, ability, and experience of each candidate, the report of such inquiry to be confined to findings of facts and to be made a part of the evidence and record upon which the Commission rates the candidate.

NOTE—Attention is directed to the fact that so-called civil service correspondence schools have no official status and no connection with the Government. Authentic information in regard to examinations may be obtained only from the United States Civil Service Commission, or an authorized representative of the Commission, and without cost. Instructions of the Post Office Department to postmasters and postal employees relative to such schools appear in the Postal Bulletin of September 12, 1921, and in the October, 1921, supplement to the Postal Guide.

NOXIOUS ANIMALS TAKE BIG PORTION OF LICENSE FEES

State Has Paid Out $135,000 In Bounties During Past Year; List Of Animals Slain.

GAME STOCKED

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 23. (U. P.)—Pennsylvania paid $134,326.50 in bounty awards on 40,039 claims for the killing of noxious animals during the year ending June 1, 1922, according to a statement today of the Game Commission.

The claims paid included 412 wildcats, 5,391 gray foxes, 3,720 red foxes and 71,132 weasels. Those claims were paid by the Game Commission which since 1915 has operated entirely on funds supplied by the sale of licenses to sportsmen of the State. Since 1915 a total of almost $1,000,000 has been paid out in bounties on the killing of vermin of various kinds it was announced.

Other expenditures of the Commission since 1915 included $275,000 for the purchase of game for stocking purposes and $125,000 for the purchase of lands for refuges. Secretary Gordon of the Game Commission announced the following totals of game stocked in Pennsylvania since 1915:

Elk	170
Deer	580
Wild Turkey	2,000
Ring-neck pheasant	31,000
Ring-neck Pheasant Eggs	72,500
Rabbits (Cotton-tail)	40,000
Varying Hares (Snow-shoe rabbits)	10,000
Quail, Bob White	31,600

BONUS PASSAGE IN SENATE PREDICTED WITHIN NEXT WEEK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—Passage of the Bonus Bill in the Senate by the middle of next week with approximately thirty votes against it seemed assured today. This was evidenced by the announcement of separate polls in the states. Senator McCumber, author of the Bill predicted that a substantial majority will advance the Bill, predicted that a substantial majority will advance the Bill to the President for signature. On the other hand, opponents of the bill, while not sanguine enough to believe it could be blocked at this time, were confident that sufficient strength could be mustered to sustain a veto.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After eight years of married life, MARK SABRE discovers that he has cut himself off from human sympathy. This prosaic and snobbish wife, MABEL, fails to understand his poetic temperament. In the firm of Fortune, East and Sabre Mark is undermined by jealousy and a partnership, promised to him, is later promised to an associate. TWYNING, suddenly one who understands him returns to his life. This is NONA, an old sweetheart, now the wife of the dashing LORD TYNAR. She admits she is unhappy and says she chose wrong. "I ought to have married you, Marko."

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

WHOSE life was Nona living? He had asked her, "Tell me about you and Tybar." "Marko, I think Tony's the most wonderful person that ever was. He does everything that men do and he does everything best. And everybody admires him and everybody likes him. You've no idea. You've no idea how he wins everybody he meets. People will do anything for him. They love him. Well, you've only got to look at him, haven't you? Or hear him talk? I think there's never been any one so utterly captivating as Tony is to look at and to hear."

Most engagingly, with such words, she had presented him: one that passed through life with, exquisitely, much, fairly gifted at his cradle with gifts of beauty, charm, pre-eminence in all that he touched, knowing no care, knowing no difficulty, knowing no obstacle, or danger, or fear, or illness, or fatigue, or anything in life but gay and singing things, which touching, he made more bright, more tuneful yet, meeting no one, of whatever age or degree, but his charm was to that age or degree exactly touched; captivating all, leading him by all desired in leadership, Fortune's darling!

"And, Marko," she at last had come to, "And Marko—this is the word—graceless. Utterly, utterly graceless. Without heart, Marko, without conscience, without morals, without the smallest scrap of an approach to any moral principle. Marko, that's an awful, a wicked, an abominable thing for a wife to say of her husband. But he wouldn't mind a bit my telling you. Not a bit. He'd love it. He'd laugh. He'd utterly love to know he had stung me so much. And he'd utterly love to know he'd driven me to tell you. He'd think—he'd love like anything to drive me to do awful things. He's tried—especially these two years. He'd love to be able to point a finger at me and laugh and say, 'Ah! Ha! Ha! Ah! You know, he hasn't got any feelings at all—love or hate or anything else, and it simply amuses him beyond anything to arouse feeling in anybody else. There have been women all the time we've been married and he simply amuses himself with them until he's tired of them, and until the next one takes his fancy, and he does it quite openly before me, in my house and tells me what I can't see before my own eyes just for the love of seeing the suffering it gives me. You saw that Mrs. Winford. He's done with her now. And he's as shameless about me with them as he is about them with me. And what he loves above all is the way I take it, and I can take it in no other way. You see I won't, I simply will not. Marko let these women of his see—or let any one in the world suspect—that I—that I suffer. So when we are to gether before people I keep up the gay way we always show together. He loves it; it's delicious to him, because it's a game played over the torture underneath. And I won't do any other way, Marko. I will keep my face to the world—I won't have anyone pity me."

PART THREE EPIQUE CHAPTER I

BUT life goes on without the smallest regard for individual preoccupations. You may take up what attitude you like towards it or, with the majority, you may take up no attitude towards it but immerse yourself in the stupendous importance of your own affairs and disclaim any connection with life. It doesn't matter tuppence to life. The year 1913 was magnificent. It was a deliciously thrilling and emotional year. A terrific and stupendous year. Many well-known people died.

It was naturally a year of strong partisanship. A year of violent feelings violently expressed; and amidst them, and because of them, Sabre found with new certainty that he had no violent feelings.

It much affected his relations with the nearest to him—with Mabel, with Mr. Fortune, and with Twyning. In these months, and in the months following, the year changing and advancing in equal excitement and strong opinions through winter into spring, he found himself increasingly out of favor at The Preenies and increasingly estranged in his home.

"I THINK WE DECIDED TO CALL HIM HAROLD, LIE, TWYNING?"

Like two living in two empty houses, empty this end; empty that end. More frequently, for these estrangements, appealed to him the places of his refuge: the room of his mind, that private chamber wherein, redressed, he assembled the parts of his puzzle, that familiar garment in which, invigorated, he sat among the fraternity of his thoughts, the evenings with Young Perch and old Mrs. Perch; the evenings with Mr. Fergus.

Most strongly of all called another refuge; and this because it called so strongly, he kept looking Nona.

He said one day, "You see there's this, Nona. Life's got one. We're in the thing. All the time you've got to go on. You can't go back one single second. What you've done, you've done. It may take only a minute in the doing, or in the saying, but it's done, or said, for all your life, perhaps for the whole of someone else's life as well. That's terrible, Nona.

"There's right and wrong, Nona. Nothing else in between. No compromise. No way of getting round them or over them. You must be either one thing or the other. Once we took a step towards wrong, there it is forever, and all its horrible things with it—deceit, concealment, falsehood, subterfuge, pretence! Vile and beastly things like that. I couldn't endure them; and I much less could endure thinking I had caused you to suffer them. And then on through that mire of dishonor—It's easy, it sounds rather fine, to say the world well lost for love; but honor, honor's not well lost for anything. You can't replace it. I couldn't."

The austere asylum of their pains. He looked back upon it as he had unfolded it. He looked forward across it as, most stern and bleak, it awaited them. He cried with sudden loudness, as though he protested, not before her, but before arbitrament in the high court of destiny. "But I cannot help you upward; I can only lead you downward."

She said, "Upward, Marko. You help me upward."

Her gentle acquiescence! There, swept upon him, as one reckless in sudden surge of intoxication, most passionate desire to take her in his arms; and on her lips to crush to fragments the barriers of conduct he had in damnable sophistries erected, and in her ears to breathe, "You are believed to me! Honor, honesty, virtue, rectitude—words, darling, words, words, words! Beloved, let the foundations of the world go spinning, so we have love."

He called most terribly upon himself, and his self answered him; but shaken by that most fierce onset he said thickly, "I'll have this. If ever it grows too hard for you, tell me—tell me."

And suddenly, in one week, life from its armory discharged two events upon him. In the next week one looked the other.

CHAPTER II

ON Sabre's desk, as he glanced towards it, was a letter from Nona.

He turned it over in his hands—the small neat script. She never before had written to him at the office. It bore the London postmark. She would be writing from their town house. It would be to say she was coming back. . . . But she never wrote on occasions of her return, they just met. . . . And she had never before written to the office.

Mr. Fortune came into the room. With him was a young man, a youth, whose face was vaguely familiar to Sabre, lying behind

"Ah, Sabre," said Mr. Fortune, "I am bringing in to you a new member of our staff. He indicated the young man beside him. A new member but bearing an old name. A chip of the old block—the old Twyning block." He smiled, stroking his white-like front rather as though this pleasant had proceeded from its depths and he was congratulating it. The young man smiled.

Twyning, edging forward from the background, also smiled. All the smiles were rather nervous. Sabre's immediate thought had been that it was an odd thing to have taken on young Twyning without mentioning it even casually to him. It was significant of his estrangement in the office.

Mr. Fortune ceased to stroke the white-like front. "In point of fact, Sabre, this very natural and pleasing desire of Twyning to have his son in the office a desire which I am most gratified to support, is his first—what shall I say?—feeling of his feet in his new responsibility. What was I saying? Ah, yes, Twyning is how in partnership, Sabre. Yes, good."

He passed before young Twyning. Well, young man, now you've made your bow before our literary adviser, I think we shall call him Harold or Twyning? Avoid confusion, don't you agree, Sabre?"

If that's his name, Sabre said, Mr. Fortune glanced sharply at him and compressed his lips. "It is," he said shortly. He left the room. (Continued in Our Next Issue)

TRUSTFUL PHILPSBURGER TURNS HIS FORD KEY OVER TO GENIAL ALTOONIAN

They tell a good story on a young fellow named Kirk who works for the Philipsburg Foundry Co. Recently he drove a Ford truck over to Altoona in which he had loaded three radio outfits. When he reached the Mountain City, Kirk drove up to the curb to park his car while he transacted business at a nearby office. When he reached the spot where he figured on parking, he found a group of people looking individual at the curb twirling a bunch of keys. As the car stopped, this individual said, "Just seen it since."

leave your key in the car, or let me have it. I'm watching these cars."

All Philipsburgers are either "green" or trustful and Kirk replied, "Very much obliged, partner. I'll just let the key stick here," as he hopped out and went his way.

When Kirk returned the prosperous-looking individual and the Philipsburg Ford, radio outfits and all were missing, and it is presumed that fellow is still watching Kirk's car, but the Philipsburger hasn't stopped, this individual said, "Just seen it since."

How to Make and Use It By A. HYATT VERRILL

XVIII. AMPLIFIERS

Amplifiers, which are devices designed to increase the volume of sound, are very simple affairs and while they may be bought ready-made any person can construct one in a few hours at much less cost. The most expensive part of an amplifier is the bulb or vacuum-tube and as such tubes as Myers are much cheaper than others and are exactly as good for amplification—though less efficient in the sending set—money can be saved by using them. A one-stop amplifier, on such a set as described previously, will greatly increase the clearness and loudness of messages and by adding two or more, and using a loud tone horn or phone, music, singing, etc., can be produced to fill a large room or hall. In using two or more stops of amplifiers it is merely necessary to duplicate the first, which is shown in Fig. 52. The only thing to be borne in mind is always to turn the transformers at right angles to each other for each step. This is essential in order to break up the magnetic fields and prevent the machine from squealing or coning. Another point to bear in mind is that the shorter the grid leads the more efficient the whole.

In the figure, A is a jack or plug-socket which is connected as shown, the outer arm of a being connected back to the phone connections on the detector or original receiver set. Then, by inserting the plug of the phone between these in the contact with

It is broken and you can listen to it as usual, while, by removing the plug and placing it at C, the message is amplified before you receive it. Fig. 53. Then, if a second step is used connect C to the jack corresponding to A on the second amplifier, as at B, and so on. The transformer D should be purchased ready-made and connected as shown and according to the directions accompanying it. In the figure, D P represents the primary terminals and D S the secondary terminals of the transformer and which will be found marked P and S on the transformer binding-posts. E, in the illustration, is the grid; F the amplifying tube plate; G the B batteries of 15 volts; H the storage battery, and I the rheostat. Fig. 51. The same six-volt storage battery used on the detector set supplies the current for the amplifier and the connections to which are shown at H. Although a grid-leak is not essential to this amplifier one may be used if desired and should be shunted by as shown at K. One rule which you should always remember in setting up an amplifier or other radio apparatus is to keep all wires as short and direct as possible for otherwise the set will howl and buzz. Another thing is to keep all wires free and clear and where they cross keep them well apart. Also, never run two wires parallel if it can be avoided and if it cannot be avoided run them parallel for as short a distance as possible.

Why not adopt for breakfast or lunch, Grape-Nuts with cream or milk and a little fresh fruit—and turn off the internal heat? Here's complete nourishment, with cool comfort.

Grape-Nuts contains all the nourishment of whole wheat flour and malted barley, including the vital mineral elements and bran "roughage," and it is partially pre-digested in the long baking process by which it is made.

There's a wonderful charm for the appetite in the crisp, sweet goodness of this ready-to-eat food, and fitness and lightness afterward, which meet summer's heat with a smile.

Britian's Navy Is "Gradually" Being Scrapped

ENGLAND'S SCRAPPING PROGRAM IS AWAY BEHIND UNITED STATES BECAUSE WE HAD A BIG LEAD IN CAPITAL SHIPS

Four Of Britain's Pride Will Go To Scrap Heap In 1925 And Then There Will Be No Great Reduction Until Ten Years Later, In 1935

AMERICA LEADS WORLD IN PEACE MOVE

By DONALD BURNETT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, August 2 (United Press)—Great Britain is trying her capital ships gradually.

Many people have had visions of a navy of the future, with warships, submarines, the great grey ships, alongside the quays, bristling with guns and searchlights, a rostrum of a fifth material.

In England at any rate this is far from the case. The fleet is being scrapped to be done by England. Admiralty officials showed a not scheduled before 1925 when four of the draughts of the King George V type cruises under the shipbuilders' hammer will be laid down.

After that the famous Queen Elizabeth, the first of the line, in 1937 the Queen Mary, in 1939 the Prince of Wales, in 1941 the Hood.

Of the later types scheduled to go and already off the water, active in the Supermarine, a few will be built, but not for the needs of Britain's navy.

But the process is gradual. A ship which has cost four millions can't be broken up in a week. To destroy a capital ship is an expensive matter, and it takes a long time to build.

Consequently the big vessel for destruction is first of all paid off, and then the crew is sent to the front. There are many such vessels in the world, the "Rotten Row" of the navy. Some of them will be scrapped, but all of them will be used in some way.

Many of the fittings of these monster vessels are being used in the construction of the new battleships. The Royal Navy is not alone in this. The United States, for example, is doing the same thing.

Progress Want Ads do the trick. In destroying, America leads. Great Britain is not far behind. England is not alone in this. The United States, for example, is doing the same thing.

ATLANTIC the balanced GASOLINE

For speed on the open road a gasoline must have quickness. For hard pulls on the hills it must have stamina. For get-away and pick-up in traffic it must have both.

Only a rangy, balanced gasoline can function efficiently and economically under all these conditions.

Atlantic does! It has both volatility and stability. Its low initial "boiling point" means easy vaporization and sure-fire ignition. Its complete chain of higher boiling points assures the full development of tremendous calorific force.

There are no weak spots in the Atlantic "chain" of boiling points. It is uniform. Atlantic all burns. It isn't wasted in misfires or incomplete combustion. It all translates to the utmost power that good gasoline and modern motor construction can produce.

Atlantic Gasoline is made by an organization which follows closely every advancement in automotive engineering and every improvement in refining methods. Atlantic is more than good gasoline—it is RIGHT gasoline!

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

A mixture of glue, cotton, and formal chydre is being experimented with at the Ford laboratories as a basis of a powerful building material of such a nature that the Ford factories can turn out flippers at the same rate that the Bureau of Printing turns out postage stamps.

Furthermore, it is said it can be used in building houses and in the manufacture of nearly every kind of machinery where steel and aluminum and their alloys are used now.

Just what the material is the Ford experts refuse to divulge, but it is declared that the combination forms an almost indestructible mass.

It is said that considerable progress has been made toward its perfection.

Nature students who make weather prognostications from various actions of birds and animals predict for the whole country an exceptionally early killing frost and autumn.

Here are some of the observations reported from correspondents in three States. The congregating of woodpeckers in large numbers near Tekoa, ready for migration fully a month in advance of any previous season.

From Lewiston, Idaho, reports that big flocks of red-wing blackbirds had been passing over for days.

A Ritzville man writes that the go-phers have already hibernated, the last one seen above ground being the last of July. They have started their winter sleep so early that the last poison bait scattered for them was wasted.

The fruit crop in Oregon is maturing two or three weeks earlier than usual. Pears are being harvested. Apples will be ready to pick long before the usual packing season. The early winter varieties are filling out and beginning to take on color.

What's the use? Here we have one of these professor fellows, telling us about drunkenness and the effect of alcohol on the human system. This, too, and the country dry, but not extra dry. He also slanders us fat fellows by the following observation:

Discussing the phenomena of drunkenness, he said that bulk, especially in the form of adipose tissue, postponed drunkenness, as it took longer in the large, fat individual to attain the necessary alcoholic concentration in the blood. Food had a marked influence on the absorption of alcohol and milk fat especially tended to prevent it. The interval between drinks was of great importance, as if sufficient time were given for the voidation of one dose before another were taken, drunkenness would not result.

He further says: Alcohol is taken as a beverage in order that one may escape for a time from the strain of existence. Small quantities of alcohol are capable of dispersing temporarily many of the worries and troubles of life, and so may play a part in restoring to better working order various functions of the body whose action is depressed by anxiety. Hence its value in cases of dyspepsia induced by worry. There are a whole raft of other excuses, too.

Training the Child.
There is a common belief that a child, when left alone, or to its own resources, is resting mentally. In this were true he would remain a total stranger to the rest of the world, whereas he is like a traveler in life, who observes and comments upon everything that is new to him. He not only makes spontaneous effort to understand, but to imitate.—Doctor Montessori.

A Clearfield resident tells you how.

F. R. Waple, 422 W. Front St., says: "I was troubled with a bad pain in the small of my back which caused me a lot of distress. I also had severe headaches and a lame and tired feeling all over. I purchased a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to do me a lot of good from the start. Two boxes of this medicine fixed me up in fine shape. Since then, when I have had an attack of that kind, I have used Doan's and have always found them to bring good results."

LEGION MAN FOR GOVERNOR

James G. Scrugham, Nevada Executive Committee Member, Candidate for High Office.

The next governor of Nevada may be James G. Scrugham, member of the national executive committee of the American Legion from that state, who has tendered his resignation from that position to Hanford MacNider, national commander.

Mr. Scrugham, who has for some time been state engineer of Nevada and Nevada's representative on the National Boulder Canyon project, has been made a nominee for governor of the state. Under the national constitution of the American Legion, candidates for paid, elective public office cannot be officers of the Legion.

Mr. Scrugham was formerly national vice commander of the Legion. He was commander of the service men's organization in Nevada from May, 1919, until August, 1920. He was chairman of a special committee that drew up the Legion four fold plan for adjusted compensation, which was later embodied in the Pechey bill.

He was born in Lexington, Ky., January 19, 1880. He was graduated from the State university of Kentucky in 1900 and received a degree in mechanical engineering in 1906. Mr. Scrugham was professor of mechanical engineering from 1903 to 1914 and dean since 1914 of the engineering college of the University of Nevada. He was made state engineer in 1917.

He was commissioned a major of artillery in December, 1917, and assigned as production engineer in the ordnance department at Washington. He served on various special assignments connected with artillery production until after the signing of the armistice.

WILL DANCE FOR DOUGHBOYS

Miss Emily V. Schupp, Duluth, Volunteers Services at New Orleans Convention.

Miss Emily V. Schupp of Duluth, Minn., has volunteered to dance for her doughboy friends at the American Legion national convention in New Orleans next October.

During the war Miss Schupp, who is known professionally as "Lada," entertained thousands of soldiers in the entertainment of America. She has appeared at Legion entertainments in a number of Minnesota cities. Miss Schupp, who is also a soloist is scheduled to appear at a recital to be given at the New Orleans convention by the Duluth American Legion band, which won first prize over 75 competitors in the band contest held at the Legion convention in Kansas City last fall.

GAS NEAR HEART IS VERY DANGEROUS

Gas around the heart is not only painful and distressing. It often is the warning of conditions, which if not corrected may become dangerous. Many times the gas is caused by derangement of the digestive tract. Food is not digested properly. Gas forms and presses around the heart, interfering with its action. In acute indigestion this often results seriously. One or two Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules give quick relief. They assist in the proper assimilation of food.

FOUGHT IN THE WAR OF 1812

Graves of 218 Americans, Enemies of England, Decorated at Princeton for First Time.

A half century after the origination of a memorial, or decoration day, on which tribute is paid to those who have died in the nation's wars, the graves of 218 Americans who fought in the War of 1812 were decorated for the first time last Memorial day.

At Princeton, England, there are the graves of 218 Americans who died while held prisoners of war in Dartmoor prison. The parish church in the little village of Princeton is built by the labor of these and a number of French prisoners.

For many years the sod which covered the remains of these sons of America was unmarked. Finally one of the governors of the prison had a cairn and a monument erected to mark the resting place of England's worthy enemies. Their graves, however, had never been decorated in the manner in which the graves of other American heroes are decorated until the London post of the American Legion placed a large wreath over their resting place on last Memorial day.

On the same day that the graves of

To Memory of 1812 Warriors.

the heroes of 1812 were decorated the Legion's London post held dedication ceremonies at Brookwood cemetery, 30 miles outside of London, where 470 American dead of the World war lie buried.

MEDAL OF HONOR MEN GUESTS

Wearers of Congressional Decorations Will Be Prominent at Leg on National Convention.

Prominent among the distinguished guests at the American Legion national convention in New Orleans, October 16-20, will be wearers of the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest award for bravery made by the United States. Lt. Sydney G. Gumpertz of New York was the first medal of honor man to accept the convention invitation.

The citation of Lieutenant Gumpertz came as a result of an act of heroism while serving as a sergeant with the One Hundred Thirty-second Infantry in the Bois de Forges, September 23, 1918.

Advancing under hostile machine gun fire, Gumpertz killed two German gunners with pistol fire and the remaining 11 members of the crew surrendered. About thirty minutes after this exploit the platoon was again held up by German machine gun nests. Volunteers were asked for to silence the guns. Gumpertz, a corporal and a private volunteered and the file advanced in single file.

Encountering the enemy's barrage, the two companions of Gumpertz were killed by a shell, but Gumpertz continued to advance alone on the crest by the flank and located it. He then threw into it a Mills hand grenade and killed and wounded several members of the crew. The remaining 16 members surrendered themselves and the two heavy-type machine guns. The action of Sergeant Gumpertz enabled his unit to continue the advance.

Carrying On With the American Legion

After spending two years in collecting funds for a clubhouse the American Legion post at Mangum, Okla., decided the kiddies of the town needed a playground more than the former service men did a clubhouse. The post acquired an eight-year lease to a tract of land and will improve it and provide the children with equipment.

The American Legion Auxiliary national headquarters in Indianapolis is trying to locate the greatest war mother in America—that is, the mother who had the largest number of sons in service. One Indiana community has a mother who had seven sons in the World war; others had as many as five—but the auxiliary wants to know definitely where in America is the woman who has the honor of having more than seven sons in service.

COL. PAUL M. BECK KILLED "IN THE LINE OF DUTY" IS VERDICT

Col. Paul M. Beck, dashing army aviator, whose death at the hands of Judge Jean Day, of Oklahoma City, under sensational circumstances involving Day's beautiful young wife, was killed "in line of duty," according to the final official report of the investigating board of the army of fliers.

As a result of the verdict of the coroner's jury, the authorities declined to prosecute Day.

Wounds were found on Day's body which, according to the report, convinced the board that showed it impossible for Beck to meet his death in the manner described.

Action now rests with Secretary of War Weeks, who, it is assumed, will approve the report. The secretary has not been able to make a complete study of the report.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 23.—"If the Federal authorities present any new evidence in the case of the shooting of Lieut. Col. Paul Ward Beck by Judge Jean P. Day, I will gladly consider it, and if necessary, reopen the case," Forest L. Hughes, county attorney, announced today.

Aughinbaugh's

He declared, however, that he believed nothing more would come of the case.

"Nothing was found here that was not disclosed at the coroner's inquest," he said. "The entire investigation by the army was a move to clear the name of Beck so that his heirs could collect the army insurance."

Curious Old Watch.

An old French watch, square in shape, which is so arranged that every step of the owner helps to keep the spring tightened, is the property of a man living in San Diego, Cal. This watch is described in the World's Advance, as the only watch in the world that winds itself. It keeps perfectly accurate time, and has worn out several good cases in its day. A key is provided for the watch, to be used when the owner is ill or unable to walk about.

A TRIBUTE TO MRS. S. C. WILSON

At last her weary soul has found the rest and peace for which she longed and altho I shall miss her in the years to come, I can say I am glad she has gone Home. The years of her suffering only seemed to make her more patient. And it will not be long until we too shall hear the call of the Master. God grant we may be as ready as she to answer the summons. For years we have been the closest friends—associated as I have been with her in her beloved work. I have reason to know her real worth. Always the soul of honor and principle, ready to go forth to do her duty and arduous work—often under adverse circumstances that were not always the most pleasant and sometimes under adverse criticism. She never faltered or swerved from the right. We who knew her best—know how faithfully she did her work in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union her best known, how for years she has faithfully performed her duties and labored for its uplift and the Clearfield Union owes much of its success to her untiring efforts. Through all her sickness she never murmured at her "Father's will." She held important offices throughout the state and as I answered and sent her letters always found words of praise from those she served and was much as we will miss her we can say "What does it matter when this life is passed."

And the record is made for evil or good.

What does it matter when death's shadow is cast
If some one can say she hath done what she could.

God grant we shall all meet at
The "One little gate when all's done."

The Ways are many and wide
The end is one.

JONES, ACCOMPLICE OF LINSNBIGLER, JUMPS HIS BAIL

Hazel Kramer, Sister-in-Law of Lee, Said to Have Disappeared with Jones in Hupmobile

TRIO IS INDICTED

Before leaving Clearfield for Cleveland Lee R. Linsnbigler purchased a Hupmobile on lease, turning in part payment for same the Chicago car identified by the Cleveland detectives as having been stolen from the Milwaukee Insurance Company of Cleveland in 1921. Notwithstanding that the lease under which the car was sold precluded its being taken out of the State without the consent of the Penn Motor Sales Co. Linsnbigler drove the car to Cleveland when he moved there about one month ago.

Since the arrest of Linsnbigler the Penn Motor Sales people arranged to have the Hup brought back to Clearfield. Ted Kramer, brother of Mrs. Linsnbigler who had been employed by the Penn Motor Sales Co., traveling to Cleveland last Saturday with Mrs. Linsnbigler for the express purpose of bringing the car back to Clearfield. When he came back here Monday evening, in stead of bringing the Hup back young Kramer presented a letter from his sister stating that he had been unable to communicate with her by hand or arrival in Cleveland on account of it being Sunday, but his attorney had seen him and he stated that he did not believe he would sell the Hup but would retain it and expected to make the next payment when it fell due.

Manager Brown of the Penn Motor Sales Co. prepared to reclaim the car, upon advice of counsel, and directed City Detective Kucera to seize it when he arrived in Cleveland.

Mr. Brown was advised by Kucera over the long distance telephone this morning that they had been unable to locate the Hupmobile as Red Jones, one of the car robbers arrested, had forfeited the $2,000 bail put up for his appearance at the hearing held in municipal court yesterday and that Jones, Hazel Kramer, sister in law of Linsnbigler, and the Hupmobile could not be located in the city.

At the hearing, after a recital of the facts as already touched upon in our stories concerning the affair, Linsnbigler, Sherwood Kramer and Yergel, the railroad detective, had been turned over to the Federal authorities and a U. S. secret service detachment sent out for the arrest of Jones and the detention of Hazel Kramer, his alleged affinity.

KANSAS MARSHAL IS KILLED DEFENDING BANK FROM BANDITS

Lawer Springs, Kans., Aug. 23.—Bandits and citizens fought a battle here early today after Leroy Dameron, aged 38, a marshal, lost his life defending the Farmers State Bank "Terrible Tommy" O'Connor, subject of a nation wide man hunt, after he cheated the gallows in Chicago by escaping from jail on the day of his execution, was believed to have been a member of the gang of bandits.

ENJOYABLE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Monday evening was the birthday anniversary of ex-pole Chief Jack Lick and about 30 of his neighbors surprised Lick by dropping in on him at his home on Hallsdale and surprising him of the happy event. Jack was equal to the occasion and promptly made all friends welcome.

Scottish songs and dances were given by the guests in old time "cassies" by Mrs. Padie and D. Kelly being especially enjoyed. The party put a climax to the evening and went by the rendering of an old Scotch song which was also very enjoyable and after delicious refreshments had been served all hands departed for home wishing Jack many happy returns of the day.

SLAYING OF COLLINS, NOTED IRISH LEADER, ROBS IRELAND OF A HEAD

shot When Ambushed By Rebels On Road; Triumphant to Succeed As Free State Rulers.

FOLLOWS GRIFFITH

Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 2.—Following the death of his staff, Michael Collins, who ambushed the car on the road from London, Ireland, yesterday, Michael Collins, Irish Free State leader, fell wounded at the moment of victory. As he fell the rebels were beaten off. For half an hour against overwhelming odds the Irish Free State and even staff who were in his party fought off the rebels. At last three of the rebels were wounded and being badly driven back and it seemed that Collins, hero of a hundred battles, had once more overthrown a rebel. But he struck him and he fell dead. He instantly.

A triumph for the Irish Free State. Collins, the hero of a hundred battles, died at the head of his staff. Collins, the hero of a hundred battles, died at the head of his staff. Collins, the hero of a hundred battles, died at the head of his staff.

CURWENSVILLE IS ALL READY TO SHOW A BIG FIELD DAY

Many representatives of the Sunday Schools from all over the county will be at the Field Day picnic in Down Port Curwensville tomorrow.

This will be the largest event of the kind ever held in Central Pennsylvania. The Grampian Road and the Curwensville Road will render the highway crowded during the day.

The big cheer which was a delight and attraction to all who heard it last night's rehearsal will be one of the delightful features of the day. The sports have been especially enjoyed upon that all the folks as well as old will find amusement to their heart's content.

$4.50 A TON IS SET AS FAIR PRICE FOR LOCAL COAL

This District Gets 75 Cents Ton More Than Where Veins Are More Thick And Cheap.

BROKERS LIMITED

Harrisburg, Aug. 2.—The Pennsylvania Fuel Commission met tonight to consider the price of bituminous coal at the mines at $3.75 a ton in the thick vein districts and $4.50 in the thin vein districts. The action was taken after a session which lasted four hours, at which it was presented that Pennsylvania coal was being attracted to other sections and would have to be placed immediately under the Fuel Administration.

The districts assigned to the commission are the same as those in force during the U. S. Fuel administration in 1918. District No. 1, where the price for bituminous coal is to be $4.50 at the mines, is as follows:

District No. 1—Operations in the counties of Luzerne, Wyoming, Carbon, Schuylkill, Lehigh, Berks, Lancaster, York, Adams, Dauphin, Cumberland, and Franklin. The price for bituminous coal is to be $4.50 at the mines, is as follows:

District No. 2—Operations in the counties of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Fayette, Green, and Washington, except that portion of Allegheny county from the lower end of Tipton town borough north to the county line and in Westmoreland county from a point opposite the lower end of Tipton town borough north along the Allegheny river to the Kittanning river and along the

BONUS BILL UP IN THE SENATE TODAY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—The soldier bonus bill, after reposing in a Senate pigeon-hole for nearly a year, was out on the Senate floor today with every indication that it would be passed within a week. The question as to whether President Harding will veto or sign the measure remains unanswered. A vitriolic attack was made on the measure by Senator Borah, anchor man of the opposition, who is confident that if the President vetoes the measure he will be sustained. Borah claims that at least thirty-seven Senators will vote against the measure.

HORSE THROWS LAD ON SHARP POINT OF MINING PICK

Bede Clapsaddle of Penn Twp. Was Riding Home On Horseback When Accident Occurred.

PENETRATED LUNG

Bede Clapsaddle, the 9 year old son of Barney Clapsaddle, who lives in Penn township, near Grampian was the victim of a peculiar accident which befell him shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The boy was sent to the blacksmith shop at Grampian by his father to get a coal miner's pick he was having dressed. He made the trip from his home to the smithy on horse back and with the sharp pointed pick under his arm the boy turned his horse head toward home and started.

While traveling the detour through the town of Grampian the horse stumbled and threw the boy on his head. He hung onto the neck and in falling one of the sharp points struck him a glancing blow in the side penetrating the lung for a distance of at least two inches, slashing and lacerating the lung sideways, a well.

Dr. J. A. Miller was called and after giving first aid treatment and making him as comfortable as possible placed the boy in his automobile and hurried him to the office of Dr. Stewart in Clearfield and from thence to the Clearfield Hospital.

A quick trip was necessary, in order to save the terribly injured lad from bleeding to death. Dr. Stewart made an incision in the boy's side, washed out the wound and stopped the flow of blood from the punctured lung and the little fellow is making a hard fight to recover, although his conditions are regarded as quite serious due to the possibility of pneumonia or blood poisoning developing.

BITTER DISPUTES MARK OPENING OF RAIL CONFERENCE

New York, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Bitter disputes marked the opening hours of the twenty second annual conference today. Head of one hundred and forty eight lines meeting to consider proposals of Big Four brotherhood members looking toward an ending of the strike found themselves at variance over their replies. A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central, Hyde Holden and C. H. Markham, committee whose probe was not closed, went to the roof of the Yale Club after the conference had been in session for some time, where they jostled back and forth as if debating some important point. Smith announced that the delegates had a lot of steam to get off their chests and that no decision was in sight.

OFFERING OF LOCAL MERCHANTS FOR DOLLAR DAY ECLIPSE FORMER EVENTS

16 Page Newspaper Just Filled With Great Opportunities for Making Dollar Go Long Ways.

STOCKS ARE FRESH

That the annual mid summer Dollar Day is going to be a great saving event for the folks who live in Clearfield and reaching distance is easy to be seen from a short perusal of the advertisements in tonight's issue. Never before in the history of the event have the merchants entered into the spirit of the day with as much vim and pep as they have this time. These merchants realize that it is time with everybody when the pennies have to be counted after the long surge of strenuous adjustment through which this community has just passed. And all thru the business district and the outlying stores you will find that the spirit of the Dollar Day has permeated every live store and your dollar takes on a greater purchasing power than it has had for several years.

Clearfield merchants can always be relied upon to do their best in an event of this kind and they have not fallen down in this instance. In a talk with the Progress man this morning, one of our leading merchants said, "Dollar Day was first instituted for the purpose of ridding our shelves of a lot of merchandise that had been in the store for a long time. Today it is vastly different. Why, I made a special trip to the city to make special purchases for this Dollar Day and I feel that I have gathered some really worth while offerings that I am going to sell for a Dollar on Friday. Dollar Day has outgrown a clearance sale, it has become an institution that is looked forward to by our people."

We believe the foregoing is the spirit if not the scope of every Clearfield merchant who is entering into the event this year. From the offerings that have already been displayed in the show windows, the savings to be made are of a very high order.

So it comes that if the weather will give us a nice day on Friday, here is a great outpouring of the savings seekers.

McDonald, Pa., Aug. 23.—An unidentified woman and a three-year old girl were found wandering in the fields north of here early today. The woman is believed to be demented and a search is being made for her relatives.

ALTOONA MEETING FOR COAL PEACE GETS NOWHERE

Operators Remind The Miner Representatives That Provisions of Old Scale Were Violated.

STILL IN SESSION

Speaking of the conference, The Altoona Mirror reporter says "The miners' representatives are standing out for the adoption of the Cleveland agreement, while this is bitterly opposed by the operators on the grounds that its terms are not acceptable because of their adaptation to local conditions."

Just how long it will take to reach an agreement, is problematical. Joint conferences have often lasted two or three weeks in the past, but it is not anticipated that it will take so long on this occasion. No prediction can be made as to the probable outcome. Both operators and miners' representatives are firm in their adherence to their respective attitudes.

Following the convening of the conference Monday afternoon the United Mine Workers went into conference and a little later came forward with a resolution in which they submitted the agreement recently made at Cleveland, in which the wage scale in effect on March 31, 1922, remains in effect until March 31, 1923, with the checkoff or collection of union dues remaining in force and the creation of an advisory fact finding commission of advisory powers for dealing with future negotiations in the soft coal industry.

When this resolution had been read and discussed a vote was called for the mine leaders voting aye and the operators voting nay.

Then came a conference of the operators in which they drew up a suggested wage scale agreement in the form of a resolution, which was presented for discussion and a vote. The operators' resolution pointed out that the wage agreement between miners and operators dated April 26, 1920, provided that in the event that a new scale agreement had not been signed on or before March 31, 1922, the men in mines should continue regularly at work under the same scale for an additional thirty days after the date on which the miners and

Mrs. John Lumadue Uses Oil On Smouldering Fire In Kitchen Stove With Usual Result.

IN SERIOUS SHAPE

Mrs. John Lumadue, of Boggs township, near Woodland, is a patient at the Clearfield Hospital suffering from severe burns received in an accident which befell her on Monday morning last.

Mrs. Lumadue arose at 5 o'clock Monday morning and lighted the fire in the kitchen. She busied herself getting breakfast when noting the fire was not burning as it should she poured the coal oil can for the purpose of hurrying up the fire. She experienced the usual result. The oil from the smouldering wood generated a gas which exploded, blowing the can from the woman's hands, striking the stove to pieces and enveloping Mrs. Lumadue in flames. With her clothing ablaze from head to foot the frightened woman rushed out of the kitchen and started to run across a field in the direction of a neighbor. The screams of the burning woman attracted the attention of her husband who was at the barn and he hurried to her assistance. Mr. Lumadue was forced to pursue his wife several hundred feet before he succeeded in catching her. When he did get up to the now frantic woman he seized her and threw her to the ground and rolled her in the grass, succeeded in putting out the fire.

The clothes were literally burned from the woman's body, not a piece of cloth as large as a man's hand remaining when the flames were finally subdued. Mrs. Lumadue was severely burned about the legs and body, but managed in some unaccountable way to protect her face from the flames. She suffered terribly until Dr. Woodside, who was summoned reached the Lumadue home from Bigler.

After administering opiates and first aid treatment Dr. Woodside wrapped his patient in a blanket and brought her to the Clearfield Hospital. She passed a fairly comfortable night last night, but her condition is quite serious due to the large area burned.

PEACE CONFERENCE ON HARD COAL END OF MINING STOPS

Miners' Refusal To Be Tied Up To Arbitration Given As Cause Of Break In Meeting.

BREAK A SURPRISE

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—(United News)—The peace conference between anthracite coal miners and operators has collapsed.

After five days of discussion, negotiations were broken off late today in what was apparently a hopeless deadlock. The way was left open for future discussions, however, by an understanding that the conference would meet again when either is requested.

The stumbling block, according to operators' version, was arbitration. Samuel D. Warriner, operators' spokesman, explained the miners' refusal to agree to "binding arbitration" of wage disputes, on which the operators insisted.

The breakdown of the conference came as a surprise, because optimistic reports had been spread concerning its probable success. Miners even prepared for a resumption of operations, and agreements was expected in all quarters.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declined to discuss the issues.

operators held their first meeting to formulate a new scale succeeding the old and upon completion of the new agreement, for such portions of the thirty days extending beyond April 1, 1922, the pay should be those that were agreed upon in the next contract; that the mines of the operators' association have been idle since April 1, 1922, and that Aug. 21 constituted the first day of joint meeting as provided in the aforesaid rule (25), and they therefore suggested that the Mine Workers' scale committee order a resumption of work at all member mines in this district under the terms and conditions as set forth by rule 25, pending and during the negotiations between the scale committees of the operators and the miners.

This resolution was put up for a vote, the operators vote aye and the miners nay, whereupon the conference adjourned until this morning.

Indiana Operators Accept Cleveland Agreement

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 23.—Thirty thousand coal diggers returned to their pits in Indiana today. They went to work at the wage in effect before the strike started April 1st—the terms of the Cleveland agreement. Mine owners and representatives of the union signed a peace pact here late yesterday.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine workers of America, declared in a telegram today to Representative Bland, Republican, Indiana, that if the Federal Government proposed to "disregard the rights of miners and operators in making an independent investigation of the coal industry," the responsibility will lie with those who recommended such action.

While the Senate labor committee was taking the first formal action toward creation of the coal fact-finding commission recommended by President Harding the president let it be known today that he was disposed to insist that the investigating body special representation for either mine made up exclusively of impartial representatives of the public without operators or employees.

RENTED HUSBAND TO WEALTHY WOMAN FOR $100 PER MONTH

Alameda, Cal., Aug. 23. Mrs. Nelly Kendrick today told the story of how she bartered her husband to Mrs. Edith Spreckles Wakefield for $100 a month and of how she later regretted her bargain. She is now considering suing Mrs. Wakefield for $25,000 for alleged alienation of her husband's affections. Mother love, the prospect of getting a steady income for her baby, prompted her to sell her husband, and womanly love for the man caused her to change her mind later, she said. Mrs. Kendrick showed no enmity toward the wealthy society woman as she described the strange love triangle centering around Rodney Kendrick, the artist. Mrs. Kendrick said she first met her husband in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1913, while employed there for the Department of Labor.

Permanent Embassies

It was not until the close of the fifteenth century that the permanent embassy became an all common, and not until the end of the sixteenth that it became a generally recognized institution. In 1487 Dr. Rodrigo Gonzalez de Puebla was appointed permanent Spanish ambassador to England, and, as he was still in London in 1500, the Spanish embassy in the British capital must be regarded as the oldest among the permanent embassies of the world.

Conception of Cultivation

Cultivation a generation ago meant acquaintance with letters and the fine arts, and some knowledge of at least two languages and literatures, and of history. The term "cultivation" is now much more inclusive. It includes elementary knowledge of the sciences, and it ranks high the subjects of history, government and economics. Charles W. Eliot, in Atlantic.

FOR BRAIN, BRAIN AND MUSCLE GIVE THE KIDDIES OUR SAFE MILK

The time's soon coming when your kiddies will start their regular school sessions and they'll need all the strength they can acquire, they'll need the added mental stimulus for their studies and they'll need all the muscular development possible to partake in the school athletics.

The best way for them to do all these things is to start drinking plenty of our safe milk, for it's such a body and mind builder that they cannot help but thrive on it.

If you start them on a milk diet or with plenty of milk to drink at and between meals, you'll find that they are stronger and sturdier than they have ever been.

Praise

Praise may put up a shallow nature, but it always brings something of humanity to a deep one. Love and commendation are sweet, but just because they are worth so much the true and honest spirit is turned with a sense of its own unworthiness as it receives them, a longing to be better fitted for the trust reposed in it. It is not the flash of ego, but the light of love that reveals to ourselves and lifts us to our best effort.

Daily Thought

Life, with all its fields of joy and woe, is just our chance of the prize of learning love—how love might be, hath been indeed, and is—blossoming.

KILLS BABIES TO PUNISH HIS WIFE

Husband, Fearing Suit for Divorce, Drowns Three Boys and a Girl.

Paris.—M. Hugnet, a farmer of Savignac, France, is under arrest for one of the most brutal crimes committed in France during the recent crime wave here. Hugnet is charged with having drowned his four young children in a pond in order to punish his wife, and then to have slept calmly until he was placed under arrest.

According to his wife's story, he previously had shown great love for the children, but had concentrated all his hatred on his wife. Finally, she said she could stand his beatings no longer, so she went to the home of her parents, planning to return later for the children, and then to begin proceedings for a divorce.

Hugnet heard of her plans and went to see her, begging her to return to him. Upon her refusal, he threatened to do something which would cause her death within a few weeks. He returned to his home and, at midnight, drowned the four children, taking the seven-month-old boy first, then the two-year-old son, then the five-year-old boy, and finally, Marie, seven, his only daughter.

The two older children sensed the tragedy and begged for their lives, but their father was obdurate and, after beating them with a club, he threw their bodies into the pond. It is improbable that he will mount the gallows, as it is believed he is insane and that a jury will send him to an asylum for the rest of his life.

DEAD MAN'S GLANDS ARE USED

After Execution They Are Grafted on Patient in Hospital in Sing Sing Prison.

Ossining, N. Y.—Human glands, instead of the usual monkey glands, were grafted upon George Hanzer, a prisoner in Sing Sing prison, to renew his vigor and cure him of epileptic tendencies, according to medical attaches at the prison.

Glands from the body of Edward Persons, electrocuted for murder, were transferred to that of Hanzer. Persons had been put to death three weeks before, and the glands from his body had been preserved. He had been in perfect health until the electric shock was applied.

Hanzer is convalescing in the prison hospital.

Fall From Father's Arms Kills Baby.

New Britain, Conn.—Marguerite Alenczka, ten months old, was instantly killed when she fell from her father's arms while he was carrying her on the veranda of their home. The infant fell three stories to the street. The father dropped the child, it is said, when he was bumped by a baby carriage he was taking down a stairway.

Animal Has Two Heads, Six Legs.

Areadia, Fla.—Fairy tales cannot show an equal to the strange animals which are at large in Florida these days. Mrs. Horatio Smith, a good Christian woman has seen the latest of these creatures in broad daylight. It has legs, two heads, and it is an honest-to-goodness animal, but it has feet like a duck.

Tots Play Century With Loaded Pistol

New York.—Examining a pre-revolutionary pistol that had been a plaything for children for more than a century, Clyde A. Copson one day found it was loaded with powder and shot. The pistol, with a 11-inch barrel and a half-inch bore, originally belonged to George Thomas Dwyers of the Continental army, from whom Mrs. Copson is a descendant.

Cop as a Censor

Mrs. Mary Sladden had just lit a cigaret as she stood on a street corner with her husband in New York when a cop ordered her to throw it away. When she claimed it was her privilege to smoke he struck it out of her hand. And now the police commissioner must decide if his men have the right to act as censors.

Entered in Post Office at Clearfield, Pa., as second class mail matter.

A young fellow from an outlying district got "stewed up" on moonshine while driving an automobile, ran into another car, was caught, and has had his license taken away from him. Very proper indeed. The life and limb of every man is in danger on our public highways today.

This fellow had his license taken away, not because of his drunken act, but because he had no friend at court. This is a sad conclusion, proved by the fact that the licenses of no less than a score of our citizens, who have offended more times, have not been revoked.

We read as we live, too fast. That is why more people did not take the trouble to read the text of President Harding's most recent speech before Congress. And judging from the comment we have heard some people make, they read not to understand, but to confirm their suspicions. Already there is a tendency noted in certain quarters to "read into" the message a lot of things it did not contain.

President Harding stepped on a lot of fellows' toes because he told the truth, the plain truth and nothing but the truth. The miner didn't like it because he officially stated that "except for such coal as comes from the districts worked by unorganized miners, the country is at the mercy of the United Mine Workers. Coal operators who are obsessed with the idea of "breaking the union" didn't like the chief executive to say, "in the weeks of patient conference and attempts at settlement I have come to appraise another element * * *. It is in some degree responsible for the strikes and has hindered attempts at adjustment. I refer to the warfare on the unions of labor. The Government has no sympathy or approval of this element of discord." And so on.

There is hardly a million miners and operators. Both are sore. Wonder what the other ninety-nine million of us think about having a President who speaks out in meeting that way?

Modern merchandising, contrary to the opinion often expressed, is not so wasteful as the old methods. Not so long ago we were shown the stock of an old-fashioned general merchandise store which had charged hands. Seventy-five per cent of the stock was old, faded and out of date. Wearing apparel representing all the styles from 1900 up to date was still being held in stock with their original price tags placed thereon. No effort, whatever had been made to sell these goods while they are yet saleable by making price concessions in what we know as the modern "sale."

Today the up-to-date store refuses to carry anything over from one season to another except the most staple of articles. The more progressive the merchant, the oftener he culls his stock and throws the surplus on the bargain table.

Dollar Day is to the merchant what the semi-annual house cleaning is to the home and is just as healthy for all concerned. Those who expect all new stocks to be put into Dollar Day offerings, although in many instances these stocks are new, do not understand the spirit and purpose of the event. But consider this:—

* Friday, at the lowest possible estimate, twenty thousand dollars will be spent in Clearfield. There is almost a general ten per cent. reduction and many of the offerings are better yet. That means a saving to the consumer of two thousands of dollars on that day. Worth while, isn't it?

New Jersey convicts staged a healthy riot because they were denied more than one-half a peach for dessert during "peach week," when, owing to the big crop of peaches in Jersey, everybody was being urged to eat all the peaches they could.

Pennsylvania convicts a few months ago staged a riot at the Western penitentiary because of dissatisfaction over the method of selecting prisoners for transfer to the new penitentiary in Centre county.

Eye witnesses to these riots tell us that they never witnessed nor ever expect to witness such an exhibition of hate, fury and

LIQUID ASSETS

The aim of the County National's management has always been to keep its assets, in so far as possible, in liquid shape, so that every customer entitled to credit can be accommodated on request.

At the time of the latest statement, the bank had cash assets, (cash on hand or deposited with other banks and demand loans) of $1,064,623.83.

MORE THAN A RAIN SHEDDER

African Chiefs Take the Possession of an Umbrella Very Seriously, According to Reports.

Some time ago, there was what the news described as an upset in the West African colony of Lagos; telegrams were dispatched between that country and Great Britain, governors and deputy governors were interviewed, and it was with difficulty that a native war was averted. The cause of all this commotion was an umbrella.

Now, in our country, as we all know, an umbrella is looked upon as a harmless possession—but not so in West Africa. There, among most of the native tribes, the umbrella is regarded as an emblem of royalty and its possession is strictly confined to the chief or king of the tribe.

Therefore the indignation was intense on the part of one of these kings, when he found an interior chief putting up an umbrella of his own. The king at once took a journey to Lagos, to lodge a formal complaint of the chief's treasonable conduct with the British governor.

An African king's umbrella is a very elaborate affair, and it often costs large sums of money. Most of the umbrellas for Ashanti and the Gold Coast are made of gigantic size, some of them when open measuring ten feet across.

The coverings of these umbrellas are of colored silk—the brighter the better, with very deep fringes. The largest umbrellas are carried over the heads of chiefs, by bearers while other bearers steady the umbrella by cords attached to the uppermost parts.

One state umbrella had for its apex a silver eagle standing on two silver cannons, while another umbrella had a gold lion on the top, the lion being surrounded by numerous chickens, to represent the chief and his tribe.

CHANGES IN "OLD FAITHFUL"

Yellowstone's Famous Geyser Has Slightly Lengthened the Periods Between Its Eruptions.

Old Faithful, Yellowstone's most famous geyser, has slightly changed the period of its eruptions.

According to the observations of the park naturalist and the rangers, the geyser now spouts on an average every 64.6 minutes. Last year the average period was 60 minutes.

The alteration in Old Faithful's "tempo" does not indicate any lessening of its vigor or "faithfulness." On the contrary, Naturalist M. P. Skinner's observations show the mighty fountain to be increasing in volume. The change is believed to be due to "alteration in the subterranean tube at its base."

For the last year or so Old Faithful has acquired a habit of occasionally throwing out small rocks. The passage of the rocks through the tube is believed to have enlarged its dimensions, slightly, this in turn being responsible for the lengthened period between eruptions and the increased volume of water.

A number of other interesting changes, lending a constantly varying interest to the mysterious manifestation of the park's performing natural wonders, also are reported by official observers.

That Word "Corker." The American word "corker," meaning a person or thing of superlative quality, is only a slang use of a legitimate English word. "Corker," in its original sense, meant a conclusive argument. It probably originated from the quality which a cork thrust into the mouth of a bottle stops all egress, or ingress of material in it.

The relegation of the word as used in America to the realm of slang by the dictionary writers has neither weakened the word nor limited its use.

The word "corker" is a perfectly good word. It expresses precisely a shade of meaning that needed to be expressed, and the chances are that it will be a word of good and regular standing long after the bones of the last living dictionary writers have thoroughly bleached.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Newspaper Accuracy.

B. A. White of the Detroit News after long investigation finds that daily papers make only one error in every 3,250 opportunities for mistakes. This country recently celebrated the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock and history has pointed out the very spot where they landed. Now a scientist discovers that at the time the Pilgrims landed this spot was under sea. Which leads Mr. White to ask, "If history cannot report a fact correctly in 300 years, ought we expect a newspaper to be unfailingly accurate in six or eight hours?"

Diphtheria Germs in Wild Horses.

Wild horses ranging on the open range and never in contact with human beings have been found to be infected with the diphtheria germ, according to Dr. H. W. Schoenung of the pathology division of the bureau of plant industry, at Washington. This fact, he claims, indicates that the diphtheria organism is widespread in the wild and is not carried to the horse by one human being, as has been held.

bloodthirstiness.

Granted that those confined there are hardened criminals, many of them brutes, beasts and moral renegades, is it not silly to think that the reasons assigned were the sole cause of these outbreaks?

Some day the true story of what took place at the Western Penitentiary will be told. Then we will gasp in astonishment and demand once more that penal institutions be run with a view to recreating the moral fibre in a man rather than breaking the manhood that is in him.

SLANG OF "GOOD OLD DAYS"

Great-Grandfather Enlightens Flapper as to the Meaning of Some Terms of Long Ago.

"He's a poor nut!" Jeered the flapper.

"In '59 we should have called him a 'lunny-lunamer,'" put in her great-grandfather, unexpectedly.

The flapper looked interested. "What was '59 for hip pocket?" asked she.

"Bingo," answered the old man promptly. "And home brew we should have called 'blue-ruin'; a gentleman occasionally was 'disgusted.'"

"Go on," cried the flapper, delighted. "You, my dear"—he bowed to her—"would have been 'smart as a cat' in my day. Some of your contemporaries I've seen 'slamming' about in their 'clumpers,' more like men than women, but you are always—'flummy.'"

"Next you'll be telling me you shlimmled in '59!"

"No, we 'hopped.' Do you know what we meant by a 'hummer'?"

"A good one," guessed the flapper. "How did you get excited?"

"We were in a 'pucker,' or we went on a 'burst,' or there was a 'plather,'" said her great-grandfather. Then he ended: "But there's one word that your generation can't parallel. What did we mean by 'mannershit'?"

"You have me, grandfather," admitted the flapper.

The old man opened a little worn book on the table beside him and read: "Mannershit—a portion of a dish left by the guests, that the host may not feel himself reproached." Those were good old days—what?" said he.

HIGH FOOD VALUE OF DATES

Ideal Diet Never Properly Appreciated by the American Public, Is Physician's Assertion.

"The value of the date as a food is not half appreciated by the American public," writes Dr. John Harvey Kellogg. "The date not only furnishes a variety of sugar which is readily assimilated and which is much more wholesome than cane sugar, but it supplies a fine quality of food iron. An ounce of dates in fact, supplies one-third more food iron than an ordinary beefsteak and iron of much finer quality."

"The date is equally superior as a source of food lime and other food salts, supplying seven times as much lime as does beef tenderloin. The date requires nothing but the simple addition of milk to constitute a complete diet. A pound of dates and a quart of milk afford nourishment not only sufficient in quantity to supply the needs of the average person, but of the highest quality."

"The American people are suffering from time starvation, which is resulting not only in a loss of stature, due to lack of bone development, but an almost universal decay of teeth. The free use of dates with milk as a part of the American breakfast would conduce greatly to improvement of the national health and the lowering of the mortality rate."

The Mosquito Plant. The virtues of the species of basil (Ocimum viride) known as the mosquito plant are attracting attention in England. An army officer has given a growing plant to the botanical gardens at Kew. He obtained it in N. Geru, where, he says, it is known to drive mosquitoes from its neighborhood, and the natives use an infusion of its leaves as a cure for malarial fevers. Its virtues are known in India also, as a border of it was planted round the Victoria garden in Bombay because the workmen were pestered by mosquitoes and suffered from malaria. As soon as the hedge was completed the mosquitoes left and there was no more malaria among the workmen.—Exchange.

Figures for Home Builder.

Unless very much interested in figures, the home builder does not know how each dollar is spent that he puts into the construction of his home. He knows in a general way that there are several general groups, but as he looks at the finished dwelling he does not know what per cent of the cost went for masonry or carpentry or something else. Using the dollar for illustrating the relative costs, it is estimated that 36.1 cents go for masonry, 29.1 cents for carpentry, 8.7 cents for heating, 6.5 cents for electrical work, 6 cents for plumbing, 3.5 cents for sheet metal work, 2.9 cents for roofing and 1.2 cents for hardware.

Soap Bubbles Aid Scientists.

Every one who buys gasoline for his automobile has a direct concern in the efficiency of engines, the study of which is being assisted by soap bubbles, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. These are now being used at the bureau of standards in determining the rate of propagation of flame in combustible mixtures of gases. Strangely enough, for years there has been sought a means whereby explosions could be studied under constant pressure free from complicating circumstances, but it was just recently pointed out at this institution that soap bubbles afford in ideal fashion just what is wanted.

Change Accepted by Time.

Change, perhaps, is the one thing that every particle of matter is in a state of constant change. Others stagnation at others vacuum. Even the stagnant pool of water generates and emits of life. Every particle what we call a stone has a chemistry that is ever changing form. No matter how infinitesimal the infinite atoms of the combined elements of our sphere not one is in the same place today that it knew yesterday every hour, every moment experiences change.

Granada.

Granada was at one time part of the Roman province of Roetia, but after the Arab invasion it became an independent Moorish kingdom. It was the last possession of the Moors in Spain, who fearfully gave up their country to their conquerors, Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain, in 1492.

Thackeray's Secret.

Thackeray defied all rules. His wonderful eye saw everything and everybody. He lived and enjoyed life with an absolutely unimpaired and childlike zest, and his brave, simple, tender spirit, endured, to the end. Where other men are connoisseurs of fine flavors and delicate nuances Thackeray was a connoisseur of the broadest and biggest things of life—its pathos, its absurdity, its courage, its loyalty.

Business Item.

"Honesty is the best policy," said the ready-made philosopher. "Of course, it is," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "But the public doesn't always realize it. Most people would rather be cheated a little in an affable way than do business with a person whose conscience keeps him in a state of irritation."

The True Funeral Director.

The true funeral director is serious but not gloomy; dignified, but not morose, gentle, but not fawning; self-possessed, but not self-conscious, quietly masterful but not bossy; alert, but not fussy; watchful, but not nervous; pathetic, but not lachrymose; a kindly, unassuming master of ceremonies. —From a paper read at a convention in San Francisco.

Daily Thought.

The motto marked upon our foreheads, written upon our decaposts channeled in the earth and waited up on the waves is and must be. "Labor is honorable and idleness dishonorable."—T. Carlyle.

Cleans Leather.

A reader of the Christian Science Monitor writes: "I took my handbag to a number of leather stores where they all told me it could not be cleaned, but I learned from a friend that a tablespoonful of oxalic acid dissolved in a quart of cold water cleans cowhide, pigskin and sole leather very satisfactorily."

WHY ARE SOME WOMEN POPULAR?

happy, beloved and successful, while others drag out a negative existence, or no use to themselves or anyone else? Except in a few cases the answer is to be found in a state of freedom from the troubles known as "female." The well woman radiates cheerfulness and serenity, while the ailing one repels because of her lack of these qualities. It is not necessary, however, to harbor aches and pains, and the "blues" that make one a detriment to society. The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought relief to such women, and given them a new lease on life.

: News of : Our Neighbors CURWENSVILLE

Raymond Maurey and Bruce Norris of Curwensville and Robert Kurtz of Clearfield, left today in Kurtz' car for Philadelphia, New York and Atlantic City. They will be gone for two weeks.

Great preparations are being made for the Sunday School Field Day on Thursday, August 24. There will be fine speeches, a fine choir of 200 voices, two good bands and an excellent orchestra. Many athletic events will be held during the day. A stirring base ball game will be played and there will be various kinds of races. Lovely prizes will be given to the winners. Everyone is invited to attend this picnic. Bring your children and your basket. A good time is in store for all.

Miss Mary Cole is spending a few days in Philadelphia and New York.

Mrs. W. S. Wiley, of Hyde City, was a Curwensville visitor yesterday.

Joseph Muffie and children, of DuBois, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Passarelli.

A meeting of the Alumni Athletic Association was held last evening in the auditorium of the High School to discuss the prospect of a Foot Ball team for the coming season.

John Haley, who has been attending State College this summer, is visiting relatives in town.

Misses Dorothy Shindler, Bernice Anderson and Helen Shaw, of Clearfield, were Curwensville visitors yesterday.

Frank Alexander of Reynolds, Pa., spent Tuesday in town.

Misses Lenora Test and Lily Olson, who attended Clarion Normal this summer have returned to their homes.

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

A NATIONAL TRAIT

"At any rate, the high cost of living is no problem in the South Sea Islands."

"It would be, if several thousand Americans were suddenly transported to these islands and forced to live there."

"What do you mean?"

"If you'll be so kind, months hence, somebody would enter the coconut market."

Started Early.

"You say Midding is a born reformer?"

"Just that."

"What do you mean by a born reformer?"

"I have it on the authority of his grandmother that when he was five years old, he started a campaign in his neighborhood to abolish Mother Goose."

Careful Calculation.

"I understand you have been offered a large salary to go into motion pictures."

"I have," replied Senator Sorghum.

"But I'm not going. I like to keep up with my surroundings and large as the offer seems to be it wouldn't be enough to enable me to keep the motion picture snail pace."

What Is Bad Luck?

"Oh, I just lost a lookin' glass. I'm going to have seven years' bad luck."

"I don't believe that, 'cause a friend of mine lost one and she never had no seven years' bad luck."

"It was only three days later she was killed in an explosion, so I wouldn't worry about it," said Late.

The Noes Have It.

"You know, I don't like to go to the office."

Vernon Crocker, of Virginia, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Leach.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Eckbert and children of Coalport, spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Pitzer.

"How much you resemble your sister," said he, the evening of his first call. "You have the same hair, the same forehead, and the same eyes."

"And the same nose," added the girl quickly.—London Telegraph.

NOT AT THAT PRICE

Teacher—With steak at 45 cents a pound what would four pounds and a half cost?

Johnny—They wouldn't come to our house.

Polite Designation.

Old Human Nature's ways are strange in time of stress or storm, and every time he wants a change he calls it a reform.

Distributing the Attentions.

"Are you going to take boarders next summer?"

"Yes, indeed," said Farmer Cornbloss.

"Not that we need the money, but we want somebody around besides our own family for the mosquitoes to pick on."

Not in the Cook Book.

Epicure—I flatter myself on the way I dress a salad.

Sincere—I used to flatter myself on the way I dressed a chicken, but since they added the luxury tax I have had to cut that out.—Judge.

Pointing a Moral.

"Do you tell your constituents to be good and they'll be happy?"

"Not exactly," replied Senator Sorghum.

"I keep them impressed with the idea that their only chance of happiness depends on re-electing me."

Sidelights on History.

The Indians had just passed a pipe on recently invented tobacco to Sir Walter Raleigh.

"Where's your coupons?" he asked, proving, indeed, he kept ahead of the times.

PROBABLY NOT

"I presume my letters to her will be read in court?"

"It's quite likely," said the lawyer who had been engaged by the defendant in a breach of promise suit.

"I dread that. The pet names I called her will make me look foolish."

"I wouldn't worry," said the lawyer, soothingly. "The court is used to hearing terms of that sort, and I don't suppose you thought up any new ones."

A 1922 Model.

"I want to marry your daughter, sir."

"I'm merely her father."

"Of course, and that's why I thought it best to consult your wishes."

"Thank you for the compliment, young man. The only time that girl ever consults my wishes is when she pauses to ask if I'd rather give her a check or cash."

Prepared.

Wills—I told my wife she must begin to economize and that she must keep account of the household expenses.

Gillis—Is she doing it?

"She has made a start. She has bought a $50 desk, a $80 filing cabinet, and has ordered a $150 adding machine."—Answers.

"Huh? She's a singer, not a high kicker."

All Satisfactory.

His wife has not a bit of sense. Yet this don't make him blue.

The Main Idea.

"We are here to give the people what they want," said a young member at a committee meeting.

"Shh, my son," said a veteran of fire holder. "You still have a great deal to learn. We are here to make the people think we are indispensable in getting them what they want, whether they get it or not."

To Be Prepared.

It's Getting to Be Tragical.

"Did Mr. Jingle tell my funny stories at the banquet?"

"He tried to tell a joke about prohibition."

"Well?"

"But finally he choked with emotion, seized a glass of water, gulped it down, and burst into tears."

Those Mad Wags.

She—My husband has a phonograph this winter and I must say he seems more contented than he ever was before.

He—I see. To paraphrase Shakespeare, "This is the winter of his discontent."

Meant What He Said.

"Brokeleugh—I would do anything in my power to prove my love for your daughter."

Old Gutzog—Would you support her?

Brokeleugh—My dear sir, I said anything in my power.

WIDOW IS HELD AS "BLUEBEARD"

Parallel of Southard Case Seen in Arrest of Clara Gibson Carl in Indiana.

CHARGE ARSENIC USED

Girl is Accused of Poisoning Her Father-in-Law—Alleged She Bought Possession of Insurance and Property.

Greenfield, Ind.—A parallel to the case of Mrs. Lydia Southard, the "woman bluebeard" now serving a prison sentence for the murder by poisoning of one of several husbands, may be developed here through the arrest of Clara Gibson Carl for the murder of Alonzo B. Carl, her father-in-law.

Mrs. Carl is charged with having given arsenic to the father of her husband, Frank E. Carl, in August, 1921, in indictments returned by the county grand jury a few days ago. The death of her husband followed soon after that of his father and under similar circumstances. A former husband of Mrs. Carl, Robert Gibson, also died under rather mysterious circumstances in March, 1920, and is now buried in Springfield, O. It is said his body will be ordered taken up and examined.

After their deaths, the bodies of the Carls were taken to Hlawatha, Kan., their former home, and buried. In November, last year, the grand jury of Hancock county, Indiana, unearthed evidence that caused it to recommend the disinterment of the bodies of the Carls with the view of determining the manner of their deaths.

Arsenic is Found. Waldo Gling, prosecuting attorney of Hancock county, acted on the jury's recommendations and moved to obtain the removal of the bodies.

The bodies of the Carls were taken up and sent to Indianapolis for chemical analysis. The chemical report was that presence of arsenic in large quantities was found in the stomach of the body of the elder Carl. The report on the analysis of the contents of the stomach of Frank Carl will be submitted later. The indictment of Mrs. Carl immediately followed.

Gling believes that the probable motive for the murder was the desire to obtain insurance and property.

It was while the wife of Gibson that the woman came to Greenfield about nine years ago. Gibson is said to have had several thousand dollars' insurance and a small tract of land near Greenfield.

Upon arrest, Mrs. Carl exhibited calm behavior and has persistently said nothing concerning the case. Little is known concerning the woman previous to her coming to Greenfield. A search of the house she occupied is said to have revealed nothing of an incriminating nature.

Girl Who Married Sixteen Men Must Face Trial in Many Cities of the Country.

Brooklyn.—Helen Ferguson Dressler has been sentenced to six months in the reformatory, following her first trial for charges of becoming the wife of 16 American soldiers and sailors during the World war. She admits her object was to get their allowances.

When she has served that sentence she is scheduled for trials in Baltimore, Md.; Norfolk, Va.; Holyoke, Mass., and several other places where her "husbands" live.

Fortunately for the much-married woman the most of her husbands came from the Great Lakes naval training school, at Chicago. "At that, I will be making the rounds for the rest of my life," she declares dejectedly.

Spent $23,000 on Husband.

Thuron, O.—In an effort to keep her husband home at night, Mrs. Alice Watson bought him $8,000 worth of automobiles and spent $15,000 of her own money, she told the court.

But all her efforts were to no avail. Mrs. Watson therefore brought suit for a divorce from Leon A. Watson, of Cleveland, O.

CHARGES OFFICIALS OF DISTRICT FIVE WITH GETTING AWAY WITH THREE MILLION

Serious charges against the officers of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, and other officers of the miners' union who have held office since 1913 in No. 5 district, were brought yesterday by three members of the United Mine Workers, who, through Attorney Charles B. Prichard filed a bill in equity in the prothonotary's office against Robert R. Gibbons, president; P. T. Fagan, vice president; William Hargest, secretary-treasurer, the present officers and Van Bittner, Phil Murray, Patrick Hanaway, Robert Woods, John O'Leary, James Flood, Thomas W. Hughes, Fred C. Gullick, William Hyves, Michael D. Egan, William Teare, John Vogel and James Charlton, former officers or members of the district executive board.

Charges that since 1913 a sum of money aggregating $3,000,000 has been collected by the officers and that but comparatively little was spent in pursuance with the constitution and bylaws of the organization, are made by the three plaintiffs who file the suit in their names and in the names of all other members of District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers.

$3,000,000 Is Issue

The plaintiffs, George S. Fisher, Michael Halapny and Charles Chambers are residents of Fairview, Washington county, and are members of the organization.

The bill claims that by means of the procedure known as the "check-off" method of the members have been righteously collected together with a with an additional sum of one half of one percent of the total earnings of each member, containing this sum was to go into a defense fund for the payment of strike benefits and other necessities in time of strike. It is charged that since then has been no widespread strike since 1913 up until April 1 there should be approximately $3,000,000 in the fund. The bill claims that the defendants can prove that at a strike at Crucible, Pa., affecting but 18 men, it was reported by the defendants that $40,000 was spent in relief and strike benefits and that during the short National strike in 1919 strike benefits of $2 were offered to the miners, some refusing and others accepting this award.

Misappropriation Charged

It is charged that William Hargest, secretary-treasurer, has refused to make semi-annual reports of expenditures to the locals and that all of the defendants have acted in an improper manner and have "either misappropriated and embezzled a large part of the huge fund, approximately $3,000,000 or are improperly, unjustly, unlawfully and inequitably withholding the same from the legal and proper use for which the same was intended.

Giving an example the bill charges that Van Bittner and Patrick Hanaway without just authority, diverted $10,000 from the trust and loaned it to the Bertha Coal Company, making no record on the books of any such action. It is also alleged that a bonus in the form of stock was given to the defendants, which they have appropriated to their own use.

Benefits Denied, Is Charge

It is also alleged that during the recent strike that the defendants have refused to pay strike benefits and have refused to pay burial expenses of members, although such is provided for in the constitution.

The plaintiffs ask that the defendants answer the charges in the bill and that an account be rendered of all the money paid to or disbursed by the defendants and that the defendants be compelled to restore missing money and ordered to make payments to miners as provided for in the constitution of the organization.

EACH BLAMES OTHER

Boy Is Convicted of Murder, With Girl as Accessory—Pitifully In Love With Each Other—Boy
Was Not Even Wild.

Atlanta, Ga.—Since time immemorial women have wanted things beyond their reach and men have sacrificed themselves to gratify the wishes of women.

It was in the Garden of Eden, when the apple appealed to Eve, so it was when Georgia's ambition lured Atlanta's youth to crime. (Care chosen men into being with her beauty. Helen of Troy sent them forth to fight and die. History is sealed with the consequences to the man who risked their lives for woman's wishes might be gratified.

In this day's variation on the ancient theme, for there is a new form of it illustrated every day—out of a youth full romance—the initiation of an impetuous boy for a handsome girl. (Care chosen men into being with her beauty. Helen of Troy sent them forth to fight and die. History is sealed with the consequences to the man who risked their lives for woman's wishes might be gratified.

Though each blames the other for the plight they are in they are pitifully in love, and when the boy was brought to trial charged with murder and the girl involved as a possible accessory they sat side by side affectionately.

Not Even Wild.

This is the story of Frank P. Du Pre, the Peachtree bandit, and Betty Andrews of the Chu Chin Chow chorus.

Frank was seventeen years old when they met in Atlanta two years ago. She, sixteen, the child of divorced parents, struggling for a place in the spotlight of the stage, he the son of respected, refined parents, and not even considered wild.

But last month he broke into two jewelry stores, looted them, shot and killed Lily C. Walker, a Pinkerton detective, and in his flight wounded City Comptroller Dr. Graham West, then made a safe getaway.

He was arrested in Detroit on a crew developed from a letter he had written to a newspaper, signed "The Peachtree Bandit," boasting with boyish bravado of his escape.

Shot and Killed Lily C. Walker.

Other letters he wrote to friends were not read and the girl was implicated all an ultimately letters she sent him came to his arrest. Atlanta authorities will pay rewards totaling $21,000 for information for the boy is considered a dangerous criminal and that obtained $40,000 in jewels in the looting of a number of shops.

At his trial Du Pre was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged. He received the sentence smilingly.

Mrs. Walker, widow of the slain man, was in court when sentence was pronounced. "Thank God," she exclaimed.

Betty Wanted $2,500 Ring.

The immediate cause of the Kaiser's slaying, which resulted in the killing of the boy and ultimate capture, was the desire of Betty Andrews for a $2,500 ring displayed in the window of the J. W. Smith jewelry store.

She demanded luxuries of every kind. It was her habit to get into the store and look at the things she wanted.

At the trial it was testified that Du Pre was a student at school, a very good student, and that he was in comparison with his own mind.

He was a confident student, and the girl and seven men in his class. He was a confident student, and the girl and seven men in his class. He was a confident student, and the girl and seven men in his class.

Mothers Cook Book

For palates that must have inventions to delight their taste.

THESE ARE GOOD

SUCH vegetables as the delicate pea are best served in the liquor in which they were cooked.

Deviled Herring.

Take two cupsful of smoked boneless herring, half cupful of diced celery, one fourth of a teaspoonful of mustard, two tablespoonfuls of minced green peppers, one fourth of a teaspoonful of cayenne, one tablespoonful of minced onion, a fourth of a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoonfuls of butter, three tablespoonfuls of flour, two cupsful of tomato juice and one cupful of buttered crumbs. Cut the herring into dice and let stand in a warm water for forty five minutes. Melt the butter, fry the celery onion and pepper until softened.
Add the fish, flour and seasonings, mix well and add to the tomato gradually. Let boil. Turn into buttered ramekins, cover with crumbs and bake until brown.

Bulgarian Dressing.

Take three fourths of a cupful of mayonnaise dressing add one half cupful of chili sauce, one teaspoonful of walnut catsup, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one teaspoonful of vinegar, one half teaspoonful each of salt and paprika and one tablespoonful each of chopped red and green pepper. Mix well and chill before serving.

ONCE IS ENOUGH

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"SLAVE"

IT BY no means infrequently occurs that national names become the type of particular qualities, characteristics or dispositions, as is well evidenced in the adjective "Frank," derived directly and without the alteration of a single letter, from the tribe name of the Franks, famous for their free open life, and their continual resistance to oppression of all kinds.

In much the same way we obtain the word "slave," the opposite of the Frank, or free-man, Gibbon, in his "Decline and Fall," has a passage which throws much light on this. "The unquestionable evidence of Ian gungie attests the descent of the Bulgarians from the original stock of the Slavonic or Slav race. The kindred tribes of Serbians, Rumanians, Russians, Croatsians, Wallachians and others followed either the standard or the example of the leading tribe. From the Exaltation to the Adriatic, in the state of captives or subjects or allies or enemies, in the Greek empire, they overpowered the land and the national appellation of slaves has been degraded by chance or malice from the signification of glory to that of servitude."

A mere chance, mishap in war, is therefore responsible for "slave," and those old Slavonic tribes, subdued, stolen and sold, have immortalized their names and concentrated their record within the confines of a single five-lettered word.

WHY?
IS THE SPILLING OF SALT UNLUCKY

THE superstition connected with the spilling of salt during a meal has had the same origin as that concerning 13 people at a table—the Last Supper. But, unlike the latter belief, there is no foundation for it in history. None of the accounts of the Last Supper records any spilling of the salt by Judas and it is doubtful whether Leonardo da Vinci, in his famous fresco of Christ and His apostles, intended to attach any significance to the overturned saltcellar beyond indicating nervousness on the part of Judas. Da Vinci's painting having been accepted as an historic replica of the Supper, it is only natural that the incident of the overturned salt should have been implanted in the public's mind as an integral part of the meal and that it should have been connected with Judas and his subsequent ill fortune.

The custom of throwing salt over the left shoulder in order to dissipate any evil influence has an origin which antedates Da Vinci by many hundreds of years. The pagan Romans considered that salt was sacred to the Penates, the household gods, and that to spill it during a meal would incur the wrath of these gods—not upon the spiller but upon the person toward whom it was spilled. Casting a pinch of salt over the left shoulder—an act of politeness, for it was supposed to lift the curse from the person toward whom the salt fell and to fasten it upon the spiller himself. It was doubtless this ancient faith which caused Leonardo da Vinci to include the overturned salt in his painting of the Last Supper.

A steam-driven tractor of the end-less tread type has been developed in which oil is the fuel used for its two engines mounted on opposite sides.

Something to Think About
By R. A. WALKER

CHARACTER BUILDERS

YOU may be filled with wonder at the number of disappointments that come into your life, frequently, too, at a time when you are least able to bear the shock.

Being afflicted with the common infirmities of mankind, you fall to consider that others are as repeatedly beset by disappointments as you.

Some, it is true, run aground and are wrecked, swallowed up by the sea of dependency and swept away.

Others, more courageous by reason of their faith in a higher power, possessing a better judgment than their own, summon up new strength and all bravely on, refusing to lose heart or to become discouraged because they have temporarily lost sight of their friendly star.

And this is what we all ought to do, quite irrespective of our many slips and stumbles, else in rebellion we lose hope.

An artist who imagines he has at last found the right color for what he feels shall be his masterpiece of tone and composition, is disappointed when at the final stroke of the brush he is confronted with the palpable misarrangement of his plan.

And so is the singer with a pleasing voice who, after years of hard work, discovers a defect which cannot be overcome.

A disappointed child dries his tears and turns his attention to a new quest. In the novel surroundings he quickly forgets his old dismay and rises gaily to sunnier heights.

We older children, much harder to please and decidedly less inclined to change our course, do not bear the chastisement with similar grace, being disposed to violent rebellion and shameful outbursts of passion which in our cooler moments, let it be stated charitably and with due regard to the various frailties of human nature, we occasionally regret.

To turn squarely about when defeated on the very threshold of success, though exceedingly difficult and humiliating, is the noblest thing to do.

In this one sublime act, we unconsciously uncover the true base of character, and exhibit our unsuspected virtues.

The storms of ages may beat against such character, but they can neither make nor destroy it. Built as it was by disappointments for an eternity of sweet content, such a mortal tongue cannot describe or imagination picture.

Uncommon Sense

HERITAGE OF HONESTY

"I KNEW from a child, that it was wrong to steal," said a very successful man who has made a fortune without being a crook.

"That is what saves the world," replied an editor to whom he was talking. "Thank Heaven, all boys are honest. They never become crooks till they are men."

That statement is in a large measure true. While children, if trained by accident, will steal, they know instinctively that stealing is wrong. They would much rather be straight.

The theft of apples or watermelons or peaches committed by youngsters is mischief.

Show them that it is really stealing, that they are depriving someone else of what is rightfully his, and there will be no more climbing over back fences for them.

One of the reasons that this is not a difficult world in which to live is that honesty is instinctive, and theft has to be cultivated.

The average schoolboy despises a thief, and will have nothing to do with him.

If he reads in the newspapers of an absconder or a forger or a man who misappropriates a trust, the lad is shocked and disgusted.

It is only when he becomes hardened by contact with the world, and learns that men often prosper, even though they are dishonest, that he becomes hardened, and justifies his own misdeeds.

Watch a crowd of boys at games, and you will find that the cheat is always marked and barred from the game if he continues to cheat.

The cheat himself was not a cheat always. He has learned cheating from another boy who in all likelihood learned it from a man.

As long as we start honest, as we do, the greater percentage of us are likely to remain so.

Only those who are weak fall from their standards, and even they, when the race is over, heartily regret that they ever were anything but fair and clean and open-minded in their dealings with their fellows.

The SANDMAN STORY

OLD RABBIT'S ADVICE

YOUNG JACK RABBIT came running into the house where he lived all out of breath. "I got away. He didn't catch me this time," he said sitting down on the floor near Grandpa Rabbit's chair.

"Who was chasing you, Mr. Dog or Mr. Man?" asked Grandpa.

"Oh, it was Mr. Dog," answered Jack. "I went up to the farm to get a bit of lettuce and Mr. Dog was running through the garden taking a short cut home, for it was his dinner time, when he happened to catch sight of me sitting under the cabbage."

"I had my eye on him, though, and I had a good start and here I am safe."

Little Jack Rabbit Sat Up Straight and said, "I guess he is pretty angry for he didn't catch me and he will be late for his dinner."

"I know you are a good runner, Jack," said Grandpa Rabbit, "but let me tell you a trick I once played on two dogs that were chasing me and I was too far from home to take a chance on a run. You must find this same trick some day, so listen to what I am going to tell you."

Little Jack Rabbit sat up straight with both ears sticking up so he would not lose a word of what wise Grandpa was going to say.

The Friendly Path

Walter L. Robinson

THE PATH OF LIFE

NO ONE can confidently expect his life to follow a straight path. It is, therefore, always well to be prepared to change one's route when ever progress demands a change. No matter how careful one may be in working out his plans, there are likely to be times when he knows he has planned wrong.

Too many of the trials of life result from unwillingness to admit mistakes. Family quarrels, business disagreements and the deplorable fights in church organizations may usually be traced to stubbornness.

Stupidity and stubbornness usually go hand in hand. The wise man or woman knows it is folly to follow the wrong path when the right one is found. But stupid persons insist on an obdurate attitude which is against their own interests just as surely as against those of their fellow men.

Sometimes it is necessary to force the stupid to change their course. This is not infrequently a disagreeable task. But some one must assume the leadership in every job and if the leadership entails jobs one dislikes there is no evading the consequences if the right course is passed up.

Over in Germany not many years ago the Kaiser and his advisors refused to take the right course. They preferred to have vast hordes of soldiers goose-step across little Lorraine, leaving a path of sorrow and death in their wake.

But now comes the glad news that the goose step is gone. The allies agreed that the German armies must disband. And they have. With the passing of the goose-step there has disappeared one of the greatest enemies to the peace of the world. It cost a lot to compel the Germans to take the right path. Costly to Germany and the allies alike the new order ought to bring happiness to the New Germany as well as the civilized nations of the globe.

This is one of her latest pictures.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Picks out your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance your lucky day and lucky day.

LEILA

THE original Leila must have been a "ramp." It is distinctly a Moorish name—in fact it is translated to mean "Moorish"—and it was usually bestowed upon the loveliest of the always beautiful Moorish maidens.

In reality, it is generally supposed to be one of the feminine names derived from the lily. "As the lily is the fairest of flowers, perhaps Leila as the most beautiful of her tribe came thus to be used as a proper name. Etymologists are frankly puzzled by her origin, since it seems that only the Hebrew and Slavonic tongues give names really taken from flowers.

But however that may be, and though the lily is a difficult to trace as the rose, it must still be contended that Leila had her origin in the pure white chalice of the most fragrant of all flowers. Lillioja Gonzaga of Italy was perhaps one of lily-paues which preceded Leila. There was a Lillia Ruthven in Scotland in 1557. The Queen of Naples among whom the Scottish build of "Rosalind and Lillian" was woven was named after the lily and, curiously enough, was called Cecilia by the Italians.

Occasionally historians have thought that Leila and Lillian, and Lillias were only contractions of Elizabeth, but there seems little to bear out this contention, so the lily must remain rather, d'ere of all such names. Certainly its heritage of beauty is well borne out by the lovely women who have claimed the name, among them Lillian Russell the most beautiful woman of the American stage, and Lillie Lahmy, famous Jersey Lily, and long the center of romance and gossip of two continents.

Leila's talismanic gem is the ruby, the "elixir of life," which gives courage, and freedom from harm, and strength of purpose to its wearer. Friday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number. The lily signifies purity is her flower.

Lord Byron said of Leila in "The Giaour":

"Her eye's dark charm 'twere vain to tell,
But gaze on that of the gazelle,
As large, as languishingly dark,
But not beamed forth for ever spark
It will assist the fancy well
That darts from beneath the lid,
Bright as the ruby of Othello."

A LINE O' CHEER

By John Kendrick Bangs.

UNSEEN

HE BOUGHT his joys beyond the hills,
On distant sea and plain.
And never knew life's sweetest thrills
Till he came home again.
He found a peace he'd never known
In all his days before,
In any part of any zone.
Waiting beside his door,
And stranger part of all this rhyme,
It had been waiting all the time!

If Winter Comes

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After eight years of married life, MARK SABRE discovers that he has cut himself off from human sympathy. This prosaic and snobbish wife, MABEL, fails to understand his poetic temperament. In the firm of Fortune, East and Sabre Mark is undermined by jealousy and a partnership, promised to him, is later promised to an associate. TWYNING, suddenly one who understands him returns to his life. This is NONA, an old sweetheart, now the wife of the dashing LORD TYBART. She admits she is unhappy and says she chose wrong. "I ought to have married you, Marko."

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

WHOSE life was Nona living? He had asked her, "Tell me about you and Tybar." "Marko, I think Tony's the most wonderful person that ever was. He does everything that men do and he does everything best. And everybody admires him and everybody likes him. You've no idea. You've no idea how he wins everybody he meets. People will do anything for him. They love him. Well, you've only got to look at him, haven't you? Or hear him talk? I think there's never been any one so utterly captivating as Tony is to look at and to hear."

Most engagingly, with such words, she had presented him: one that passed through life with, exquisitely, much, fairly gifted at his cradle with gifts of beauty, charm, pre-eminence in all that he touched, knowing no care, knowing no difficulty, knowing no obstacle, or danger, or fear, or illness, or fatigue, or anything in life but gay and singing things, which touching, he made more bright, more tuneful yet, meeting no one, of whatever age or degree, but his charm was to that age or degree exactly touched; captivating all, leading him by all desired in leadership, Fortune's darling!

"And, Marko," she at last had come to, "And Marko—this is the word—graceless. Utterly, utterly graceless. Without heart, Marko, without conscience, without morals, without the smallest scrap of an approach to any moral principle. Marko, that's an awful, a wicked, an abominable thing for a wife to say of her husband. But he wouldn't mind a bit my telling you. Not a bit. He'd love it. He'd laugh. He'd utterly love to know he had stung me so much. And he'd utterly love to know he'd driven me to tell you. He'd think—he'd love like anything to drive me to do awful things. He's tried—especially these two years. He'd love to be able to point a finger at me and laugh and say, 'Ah! Ha! Ha! Ah! You know, he hasn't got any feelings at all—love or hate or anything else, and it simply amuses him beyond anything to arouse feeling in anybody else. There have been women all the time we've been married and he simply amuses himself with them until he's tired of them, and until the next one takes his fancy, and he does it quite openly before me, in my house and tells me what I can't see before my own eyes just for the love of seeing the suffering it gives me. You saw that Mrs. Winford. He's done with her now. And he's as shameless about me with them as he is about them with me. And what he loves above all is the way I take it, and I can take it in no other way. You see I won't, I simply will not. Marko let these women of his see—or let any one in the world suspect—that I—that I suffer. So when we are to gether before people I keep up the gay way we always show together. He loves it; it's delicious to him, because it's a game played over the torture underneath. And I won't do any other way, Marko. I will keep my face to the world—I won't have anyone pity me."

"I pity you," she said.

"Ah, you . . ."

PART THREE EPIQUE CHAPTER I

BUT life goes on without the smallest regard for individual preoccupations. You may take up what attitude you like towards it or, with the majority, you may take up no attitude towards it but immerse yourself in the stupendous importance of your own affairs and disclaim any connection with life. It doesn't matter tuppence to life.

The year 1913 was magnificent. It was a deliciously thrilling and emotional year. A terrific and stupendous year. Many well-known people died.

It was naturally a year of strong partisanship. A year of violent feelings violently expressed; and amidst them, and because of them, Sabre found with new certainty that he had no violent feelings.

It much affected his relations with the nearest to him—with Mabel, with Mr. Fortune, and with Twyning. In these months, and in the months following, the year changing and advancing in equal excitement and strong opinions through winter into spring, he found himself increasingly out of favor at The Preenies and increasingly estranged in his home.

Like two living in two empty houses, empty this end; empty that end. More frequently, for these estrangements, appealed to him the places of his refuge: the room of his mind, that private chamber wherein, retired, he assembled the parts of his puzzle, that familiar garment in which, inviolate, he sat among the fraternity of his thoughts, the evenings with Young Perch and old Mrs. Perch; the evenings with Mr. Fergus.

Most strongly of all called another refuge; and this because it called so strongly, he kept looking Nona.

He said one day, "You see there's this, Nona. Life's got one. We're in the thing. All the time you've got to go on. You can't go back one single second. What you've done, you've done. It may take only a minute in the doing, or in the saying, but it's done, or said, for all your life, perhaps for the whole of someone else's life as well. That's terrible, Nona.

"There's right and wrong, Nona. Nothing else in between. No compromise. No way of getting round them or over them. You must be either one thing or the other. Once we took a step towards wrong, there it is forever, and all its horrible things with it—deceit, concealment, falsehood, subterfuge, pretence! Vile and beastly things like that. I couldn't endure them; and I much less could endure thinking I had caused you to suffer them. And then on through that maze of dishonor—It's easy, it sounds rather fine, to say the world well lost for love; but honor, honor's not well lost for anything. You can't replace it. I couldn't."

The austere asylum of their pains. He looked back upon it as he had unfolded it. He looked forward across it as, most stern and bleak, it awaited them. He cried with sudden loudness, as though he protested, not before her, but before arbitrament in the high court of destiny. "But I cannot help you upward; I can only lead you downward."

She said, "Upward, Marko. You help me upward."

Her gentle acquiescence! There, swept upon him, as one reckless in sudden surge of intoxication, most passionate desire to take her in his arms; and on her lips to crush to fragments the barriers of conduct he had in damnable sophistries erected, and in her ears to breathe, "You are beloved to me! Honor, honesty, virtue, rectitude—words, darling, words, words, words! Beloved, let the foundations of the world go spinning, so we have love."

He called most terribly upon himself, and his self answered him; but shaken by that most fierce onset he said thickly, "I'll have this. If ever it grows too hard for you, tell me—tell me."

And suddenly, in one week, life from its armory discharged two events upon him. In the next week one upon the world.

CHAPTER II

ON Sabre's desk, as he glanced towards it, was a letter from Nona.

He turned it over in his hands—the small neat script. She never before had written to him at the office. It bore the London postmark. She would be writing from their town house. It would be to say she was coming back . . . But she never wrote on occasions of her return, they just met . . . And she had never before written to the office.

Mr. Fortune came into the room. With him was a young man, a youth, whose face was vaguely familiar to Sabre, Twyning behind.

"Ah, Sabre," said Mr. Fortune, "I am bringing in to you a new member of our staff. He indicated the young man beside him. A new member but bearing an old name. A chip of the old block—the old Twyning block!" He smiled, stroking his white-like front rather as though this pleasantly had proceeded from its depths and he was congratulating it. The young man smiled.

Twyning, edging forward from the background, also smiled. All the smiles were rather nervous. Sabre's immediate thought had been that it was an odd thing to have taken on young Twyning without mentioning it even casually to him. It was significant of his estrangement in the office.

Mr. Fortune ceased to stroke the white-like front. "In point of fact, Sabre, this very natural and pleasing desire of Twyning to have his son in the office—a desire which I am most gratified to support, is his first—what shall I say?—feeling of his feet in his new responsibility. What was I saying? Ah, yes, Twyning is how in partnership, Sabre. Yes, good!" He paused before young Twyning. Well, young man, now you've made your bow before our literary adviser, I think we shall call him Harold or Twyning? Avoid confusion, don't you agree, Sabre?"

If that's his name, Sabre said, Mr. Fortune glanced sharply at him and compressed his lips. "It is," he said shortly. He left the room.

TRUSTFUL PHILPSBURGER TURNS HIS FORD KEY OVER TO GENIAL ALTOONIAN

They tell a good story on a young fellow named Kirk who works for the Philipsburg Foundry Co. Recently he drove a Ford truck over to Altoona in which he had loaded three radio outfits. When he reached the Mountain City, Kirk drove up to the curb to park his car while he transacted business at a nearby office. When he reached the spot where he figured on parking, he found a group of people looking individual at the curb twirling a bunch of keys. As the car stopped, this individual said, "Just seen it since."

leave your key in the car, or let me have it. I'm watching these cars."

All Philipsburgers are either "green" or trustful and Kirk replied, "Very much obliged, partner. I'll just let the key stick here," as he hopped out and went his way.

When Kirk returned the prosperous-looking individual and the Philipsburg Ford, radio outfits and all were missing, and it is presumed that fellow is still watching Kirk's car, but the Philipsburger hasn't stopped, this individual said, "Just seen it since."

How to Make and Use It By A. HYATT VERRILL

XVIII. AMPLIFIERS

Amplifiers, which are devices designed to increase the volume of sound, are very simple affairs and while they may be bought ready-made any person can construct one in a few hours at much less cost. The most expensive part of an amplifier is the bulb or vacuum-tube and as such tubes as Myers are much cheaper than others and are exactly as good for amplification—though less efficient in the sending set—money can be saved by using them. A one-stop amplifier, on such a set as described previously, will greatly increase the clearness and loudness of messages and by adding two or more, and using a loud tone horn or phone, music, singing, etc., can be produced to fill a large room or hall. In using two or more stops of amplifiers it is merely necessary to duplicate the first, which is shown in Fig. 52. The only thing to be borne in mind is always to turn the transformers at right angles to each other for each step. This is essential in order to break up the magnetic fields and prevent the machine from squealing or coning. Another point to bear in mind is that the shorter the grid leads the more efficient the whole.

In the figure, A is a jack or plug-socket which is connected as shown, the outer arm of a being connected back to the phone connections on the detector or original receiver set. Then, by inserting the plug of the phone between these in the contact with

It is broken and you can listen to it as usual, while, by removing the plug and plugging it at C, the message is amplified before you receive it. Fig. 53. Then, if a second step is used connect C to the jack corresponding to A on the second amplifier, as at B, and so on. The transformer D should be purchased ready-made and connected as shown and according to the directions accompanying it. In the figure, D P represents the primary terminals and D S the secondary terminals of the transformer and which will be found marked P and S on the transformer binding-posts. E, in the illustration, is the grid; F the amplifying tube plate; G the B batteries of 15 volts; H the storage battery, and I the rheostat. Fig. 51. The same six-volt storage battery used on the detector set supplies the current for the amplifier and the connections to which are shown at H. Although a grid-leak is not essential to this amplifier one may be used if desired and should be shunted by as shown at K. One rule which you should always remember in setting up an amplifier or other radio apparatus is to keep all wires as short and direct as possible for otherwise the set will howl and buzz. Another thing is to keep all wires free and clear and where they cross keep them well apart. Also, never run two wires parallel if it can be avoided and if it cannot be avoided run them parallel for as short a distance as possible.

Britian's Navy Is "Gradually" Being Scrapped

ENGLAND'S SCRAPPING PROGRAM IS AWAY BEHIND UNITED STATES BECAUSE WE HAD A BIG LEAD IN CAPITAL SHIPS

Four Of Britain's Pride Will Go To Scrap Heap In 1925 And Then There Will Be No Great Reduction Until Ten Years Later, In 1935

AMERICA LEADS WORLD IN PEACE MOVE

By DONALD BLUMENFELD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, August 2 (United Press)—Great Britain is trying her capital ships gradually.

Many people have had visions of a navy of the future, with warships, submarines, the great grey ships, alongside the quays, bristling with guns and searchlights, a rostrum of a new world.

In England at any rate this is far from the case. The fleet is being scrapped to be done by England. Admiralty officials showed a not scheduled before 1925 when four of the draughts of the King George V type ships under the shipbuilders' hammer will be laid down. This is a minor and diplomatic war.

Of the later types scheduled to go and already off the water, active in the Supermarine, a few will be kept as a target for the torpedoes of British submarines—the "P" class—in the hands of the "P" class. The Admiralty, New Zealand Prime Minister, Royal and the "P" class.

But the process is gradual. A ship which has cost four millions can not be broken up in a week. To do so, a great battleship is an expensive matter, and it is a fact that the cost of the ship is the fact of the bill.

Consequently the big vessel for destruction is first of all paid off, and the crew sent home. The ship is then sold to the navy, and the crew sent home.

Many of the fittings of these modern vessels are being used in the construction of the new ships. The fittings of the old ships are being used in the construction of the new ships.

ATLANTIC the balanced GASOLINE

For speed on the open road a gasoline must have quickness. For hard pulls on the hills it must have stamina. For get-away and pick-up in traffic it must have both.

Only a rangy, balanced gasoline can function efficiently and economically under all these conditions.

Atlantic does! It has both volatility and stability. Its low initial "boiling point" means easy vaporization and sure-fire ignition. Its complete chain of higher boiling points assures the full development of tremendous calorific force.

There are no weak spots in the Atlantic "chain" of boiling points. It is uniform. Atlantic all burns. It isn't wasted in misfires or incomplete combustion. It all translates to the utmost power that good gasoline and modern motor construction can produce.

Atlantic Gasoline is made by an organization which follows closely every advancement in automotive engineering and every improvement in refining methods. Atlantic is more than good gasoline—it is RIGHT gasoline!

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

A mixture of glue, cotton, and formal chydre is being experimented with at the Ford laboratories as a basis of a powerful building material of such a nature that the Ford factories can turn out flippers at the same rate that the Bureau of Printing turns out postage stamps.

Furthermore, it is said it can be used in building houses and in the manufacture of nearly every kind of machinery where steel and aluminum and their alloys are used now.

Just what the material is the Ford experts refuse to divulge, but it is declared that the combination forms an almost indestructible mass.

It is said that considerable progress has been made toward its perfection.

Nature students who make weather prognostications from various actions of birds and animals predict for the whole country an exceptionally early killing frost and autumn.

Here are some of the observations reported from correspondents in three States. The congregating of woodpeckers in large numbers near Tekoa, ready for migration fully a month in advance of any previous season.

From Lewiston, Idaho, reports that big flocks of red-wing blackbirds had been passing over for days.

A Ritzville man writes that the go-phers have already hibernated, the last one seen above ground being the last of July. They have started their winter sleep so early that the last poison bait scattered for them was wasted.

The fruit crop in Oregon is maturing two or three weeks earlier than usual. Pears are being harvested. Apples will be ready to pick long before the usual packing season. The early winter varieties are filling out and beginning to take on color.

What's the use? Here we have one of these professor fellows telling us about drunkenness and the effect of alcohol on the human system. This, too, and the country dry, but not extra dry. He also slanders us fat fellows by the following observation:—

Discussing the phenomena of drunkenness, he said that bulk, especially in the form of adipose tissue, postponed drunkenness, as it took longer in the large, fat individual to attain the necessary alcoholic concentration in the blood. Food had a marked influence on the absorption of alcohol and milk fat especially tended to prevent it. The interval between drinks was of great importance, as if sufficient time were given for the voidation of one dose before another were taken, drunkenness would not result.

He further says: Alcohol is taken as a beverage in order that one may escape for a time from the strain of existence. Small quantities of alcohol are capable of dispersing temporarily many of the worries and troubles of life, and so may play a part in restoring to better working order various functions of the body whose action is depressed by anxiety. Hence its value in cases of dyspepsia induced by worry. There are a whole raft of other excuses, too.

Training the Child.
There is a common belief that a child, when left alone, or to its own resources, is resting mentally. If this were true, he would remain a total stranger to the rest of the world, whereas he is like a traveler in life, who observes and comments upon everything that is new to him. He not only makes spontaneous effort to understand, but to imitate.—Doctor Montessori.

ALL WRONG

Look for the cause of backache. To be cured you must know the cause.

If it's weak kidneys you must set the kidneys working right.

A Clearfield resident tells you how.

LEGION MAN FOR GOVERNOR

James G. Scrugham, Nevada Executive Committee Member, Candidate for High Office.

The next governor of Nevada may be James G. Scrugham, member of the national executive committee of the American Legion from that state, who has tendered his resignation from that position to Hanford MacNider, national commander.

Mr. Scrugham, who has for some time been state engineer of Nevada and Nevada's representative on the National Boulder canyon project, has been made a nominee for governor of the state. Under the national constitution of the American Legion, candidates for public, elective public office cannot be officers of the Legion.

Mr. Scrugham was formerly national vice commander of the Legion. He was commander of the service men's organization in Nevada from May, 1919, until August, 1920. He was chairman of a special committee that drew up the Legion four-fold plan for adjusted compensation, which was later embodied in the Forney bill.

He was born in Lexington, Ky., January 19, 1880. He was graduated from the State university of Kentucky in 1900 and received a degree in mechanical engineering in 1906. Mr. Scrugham was professor of mechanical engineering from 1903 to 1914 and dean since 1914 of the engineering college of the University of Nevada. He was made state engineer in 1917.

He was commissioned a major of artillery in December, 1917, and assigned as production engineer in the ordnance department at Washington. He served on various special assignments connected with artillery production until after the signing of the armistice.

Miss Emily V. Schupp of Duluth, Minn., has volunteered to dance for her doughboy friends at the American Legion national convention in New Orleans next October.

During the war Miss Schupp, who is known professionally as "Lada," entertained thousands of soldiers in the entertainment of America. She has appeared at Legion entertainments in a number of Minnesota cities. Miss Schupp, who is also a soloist, is scheduled to appear at a recital to be given at the New Orleans convention by the Duluth American Legion band, which won first prize over 75 competitors in the band contest held at the Legion convention in Kansas City last fall.

GAS NEAR HEART IS VERY DANGEROUS

Gas around the heart is not only painful and distressing. It often is the warning of conditions, which if not corrected may become dangerous. Many times the gas is caused by derangement of the digestive tract. Food is not digested properly. Gas forms and presses around the heart, interfering with its action. In acute indigestion this often results seriously. One or two Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules give quick relief. They assist in the proper assimilation of food.

FOUGHT IN THE WAR OF 1812

Graves of 218 Americans, Enemies of England, Decorated at Princeton for First Time.

A half century after the origination of a memorial, or decoration day, on which tribute is paid to those who have died in the nation's wars, the graves of 218 Americans who fought in the War of 1812 were decorated for the first time last Memorial day.

At Princeton, England, there are the graves of 218 Americans who died while held prisoners of war in Dartmoor prison. The parish church in the little village of Princeton was built by the labor of these and a number of French prisoners.

For many years the sod which covered the remains of these sons of America was unmarked. Finally one of the governors of the prison had a cairn and a monument erected to mark the resting place of England's worthy enemies. Their graves, however, had never been decorated in the manner in which the graves of other American heroes are decorated until the London post of the American Legion placed a large wreath over their resting place on last Memorial day.

On the same day that the graves of

To Memory of 1812 Warriors.

the heroes of 1812 were decorated the Legion's London post held dedication ceremonies at Brookwood cemetery, 30 miles outside of London, where 450 American dead of the World war lie buried.

Could Accommodate Spirit.

"I'm sorry my engagements prevent my attending your charity concert, but I shall be with you in spirit." "Splendid! And where would you like to sit? I have tickets here for $5, $2.50, and $1."—Flegende Blatter.

Must Go on Forever.

Time is like a river made up of the events which happen, and a violent stream; for as soon as a thing has been seen, it is carried away, and another comes in its place and this will be carried away, too.—Marcus Aurelius.

MEDAL OF HONOR MEN GUESTS

Wearers of Congressional Decorations Will Be Prominent at Legion National Convention.

Prominent among the distinguished guests at the American Legion national convention in New Orleans, October 16-20, will be wearers of the Congressional medal of honor, the highest award for bravery made by the United States. Lieut. Sydney G. Gumpertz of New York was the first medal of honor man to accept the convention invitation.

The citation of Lieutenant Gumpertz came as a result of an act of heroism while serving as a sergeant with the One Hundred Thirty-second Infantry in the Bois de Forges, September 23, 1918.

Advancing under hostile machine gun fire, Gumpertz killed two German gunners with pistol fire and the remaining 14 members of the crew surrendered. About thirty minutes after this exploit the platoon was again held up by German machine gun nests. Volunteers were asked for to silence the guns. Gumpertz, a corporal and a private volunteered and the trio advanced in single file.

Encountering the enemy's barrage, the two companions of Gumpertz were killed by a shell, but Gumpertz continued to advance alone on the nest by the flank and located it. He then threw into it a Mills hand grenade and killed and wounded several members of the crew. The remaining 16 members surrendered themselves and the action of Sergeant Gumpertz enabled his unit to continue the advance.

Carrying On With the American Legion

After spending two years in collecting funds for a clubhouse the American Legion post at Mangum, Okla., decided the kiddies of the town needed a playground more than the former service men did a clubhouse. The post acquired an eight-year lease to a tract of land and will improve it and provide the children with equipment.

The American Legion Auxiliary national headquarters in Indianapolis is trying to locate the greatest war mother in America—that is, the mother who had the largest number of sons in service. One Indiana community has a mother who had seven sons in the World war; others had as many as five—but the auxiliary wants to know definitely where in America is the woman who has the honor of having more than seven sons in service.

WOODLAND WINS FROM

SANDY RIDGE

Woodland A. C. journeyed to Sandy Ridge Saturday and came home with the game to the tune of 4-3. The pitching of Weiser was the feature, he having eleven strike outs to his credit and also pitched shut out ball when hits meant runs for Sandy Ridge. The batting of Walker, Fauver and "Pop" Young was of the character to fatten batting averages for the season. Woodland A. C. has a busy schedule for the week. Thursday, Sanborn; Saturday, Blue Ball. All away from home. Saturday score: Woodland A. C. 4, Sandy Ridge 3.

WANT HERO MEDAL FOR HIM

Charles Crozier, New York, Plunged into River and Saved Seven-Year-Old Boy.

As Charles J. Crozier of 518 Tully street, Syracuse, N. Y., was driving a truck across a Syracuse bridge he happened to look at the river below. Crozier's casual glance underwent a decided change. He saw something in the water. A small hand and arm seemed to be just level with the surface. Not many seconds elapsed until Crozier was beneath the surface of the water to see who was attached to the arm.

The next thing he really saw very distinctly was the small wet body of a seven-year-old boy silhouetted against the white interior of an ambulance. Crozier and William John Hanley, Jr., whose life he had saved, were on their way to the hospital.

For his act of heroism his buddies of the American Legion are helping in the movement to secure for him a Carnegie life-saving medal.

BASEBALL TAKES ON NEW LIFE WITH 'OLD' SAUL BACK ON JOB

The American Legion ball Club will continue its efforts to give Clearfield some good baseball before the season closes. Games are being arranged with the strong teams in this section for each coming Thursday and Saturday, with a big game on Labor Day.

Dieter, the hardworking infielder, who has been playing an exceptionally fast game at shortstop is leaving Clearfield to take over the management of a five and ten cent store in one of the southern States. His loss would be considered a real blow to the team were it not for the fortunate fact that Saul Robinson, one of the best local players in this section, has returned home from Harrisburg where he has just finished a most successful season. He can be counted upon to more than fill the vacated Dieter's shoes at short.

The team is practicing hard daily and the fans should show their appreciation by turning out for the coming games.

ORIGINATED THE GOLD STAR

Medal Showing Appreciation of the Idea is Presented to J. M. Buck of Omaha, Neb.

A medal purchased with funds given by the governors of many States, General Pershing and a hundred notables in civil and military circles, has been presented to J. M. Buck of Omaha, Neb., who originated the gold star which was placed on the caskets of all war dead to be returned to this country from European battlefields.

Omaha was a distributing point for the United States graves registration service. After the federal agency began to return bodies from overseas, thousands of caskets passed through Omaha. Mr. Buck suggested to the Omaha American Legion that a gold star be placed on each soldier's casket. The Legion immediately accepted the idea and through the Legion's organization, the custom of placing the star on all soldiers' caskets in all parts of the United States was adopted.

Every confugate of soldier dead arriving at Omaha was met at the railway station by a delegation from the American Legion. Mr. Buck always accompanied the Legionnaires and supervised the placing of the stars on the caskets. The medal was presented Mr. Buck as an expression of appreciation of his work.

SUGGESTIONS OF A DOUGHBOY

Being the suggestions of a doughboy on the manner of conducting the next war, together with certain reflections on the conduct of the last one. That all song writers, would-be writers, song leaders and vaudeville singers be marked Class 1-A. That they be drafted in the first contingent and have at least six months' intensive training at K. P. military detail, etc., before being permitted to compose their country's songs.

That any person who shall write, compose or sing, or attempt to write, compose or sing songs expressing doughboy sentiment without such previous training shall be liable to death and shall be sent over the top at midnight with a lantern in each hand.—American Legion Weekly.

PATRICIA

IT CAN truthfully be stated, without fear of punning, that Patricia is a patrician name. It signifies "noble" and comes from the Latin word—father—which was the source of "patria," the "fatherland."

The patricii were the privileged class of Rome since its members were descended from the original thirty fathers, or patres. Patricia, meaning the noble, was the title given to the young Roman-British Calpurnius who was stolen by Irish pirates in his youth and, when ransomed, returned as an apostle to the land of his captors, bringing the name of Patricia, which is so popular and so revered in Ireland, in memory of the patron saint.

Patricia is a Scottish invention, according to etymologists. The name made its appearance there as the feminine of the masculine Patric, which was the Scotch form of Patrick. Though Patricia spread to England and won great popularity there and later found vogue in Ireland, no attempt has ever been made to change its form or spelling.

Patty, which is often thought to be the diminutive of Patricia, has no relation whatever to the noble name, but is the diminutive of Mary.

Motorless Airplane Is Near Perfection Says Glenn Curtiss, Pioneer

New York, N. Y.—An American motorless aeroplane, capable of arising from and alighting upon the water, has been completed and will shortly be put to a series of tests which, if successful, will far outdo anything in the glider line where the fliers start from the mountain tops, Glenn H. Curtiss, pioneer in the flying world, announced today. Praising the attempts made at Geresfeld, in Germany, where an airman remained aloft two hours and ten seconds, Curtiss said he expected shortly to demonstrate a glider in which the pilot literally "lifted himself by his boot straps" from the surface of the sea instead of starting down a mountain side.

Berlin, Germany, Aug. 22.—Navigation of the air with motorless airplanes is next objective of German scientists, judging from experiments conducted at Wasserkop where Hensen already has remained aloft two hours and ten seconds in such a machine. This stands as the world's record, but it may be smashed when the Fokker glider, two of which have just been received at the aviation grounds, are put into operation. They have a greater wing spread than the one in which Hensen established the record.

GRAIN SHIPMENT TO SEABOARD MAKES A RECORD IN TRANSIT

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 23.—(U. P.)—A record for transporting export grain from a Buffalo elevator to a ship in the port of Philadelphia was announced recently by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

A cargo of 75,000 bushels of wheat for the International Mercantile Marine steamship Maryland, which cleared recently for Hamburg, was in an elevator at Buffalo on Saturday afternoon, a week ago. Saturday night it was loaded on to forty-seven freight cars, and made into a solid train. The train left Sunday morning. It reached the Girard Point Elevator here Monday afternoon. At 7 o'clock Tuesday morning the grain was loaded into barges to be floated to Pier 53. By Tuesday night the entire cargo was loaded, ready for trans-Atlantic transportation. The operation had taken 72 hours.

The Heart Lived In.

Faber has said, "A man's heart gets cold if he does not keep it warm by living in it." Love to others is not a matter of mere outflowing impulse. COL. PAUL M. BECK KILLED "IN THE LINE OF DUTY" IS VERDICT

Col. Paul M. Beck, dashing army aviator, whose death at the hands of Judge Jean Day, of Oklahoma City, under sensational circumstances involving Day's beautiful young wife, was killed "in line of duty," according to the final official report of the investigating board of the army of fliers.

As a result of the verdict of the coroner's jury, the authorities declined to prosecute Day.

Wounds were found on Day's body which, according to the report, convinced the board that showed it impossible for Beck to meet his death in the manner described.

Action now rests with Secretary of War Weeks, who, it is assumed, will approve the report. The secretary has not been able to make a complete study of the report.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 23.—"If the Federal authorities present any new evidence in the case of the shooting of Lieut. Col. Paul Ward Beck by Judge Jean P. Day, I will gladly consider it, and if necessary, reopen the case," Forest L. Hughes, county attorney, announced today.

Aughinbaugh's

He declared, however, that he believed nothing more would come of the case.

"Nothing was found here that was not disclosed at the coroner's inquest," he said. "The entire investigation by the army was a move to clear the name of Beck so that his heirs could collect the army insurance."

Curious Old Watch.

An old French watch, square in shape, which is so arranged that every step of the owner helps to keep the spring tightened, is the property of a man living in San Diego, Cal. This watch is described in the World's Advance, as the only watch in the world that winds itself. It keeps perfectly accurate time, and has worn out several good cases in its day. A key is provided for the watch, to be used when the owner is ill or unable to walk about.

A TRIBUTE TO MRS. S. C. WILSON

At last her weary soul has found the rest and peace for which she longed and altho I shall miss her in the years to come, I can say I am glad she has gone Home. The years of her suffering only seemed to make her more patient. And it will not be long until we too shall hear the call of the Master. God grant we may be as ready as she to answer the summons. For years we have been the closest friends—associated as I have been with her in her beloved work. I have reason to know her real worth. Always the soul of honor and principle, ready to go forth to do her duty and arduous work—often under adverse circumstances that were not always the most pleasant and sometimes under adverse criticism. She never faltered or swerved from the right. We who knew her best—know how faithfully she did her work in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union her best known, how for years she has faithfully performed her duties and labored for its uplift and the Clearfield Union owes much of its success to her untiring efforts. Through all her sickness she never murmured at her "Father's will." She held important offices throughout the state and as I answered and sent her letters always found words of praise from those she served and was much as we will miss her we can say "What does it matter when this life is passed."

And the record is made for evil or good.

What does it matter when death's shadow is cast
If some one can say she hath done what she could.

God grant we shall all meet at
The "One little gate when all's done."

The Ways are many and wide
The end is one.
